Soviet Planes And Ships 'Join' Allied Naval Games

Russ Shadow Exercise, May Be "Utilized"

LONDON (AP) — Soviet planes, surface ships and submarines shadowed North Atlantic Treaty Organization naval exercises Tuesday despite an effort to keep their whereabouts secret. But Western commanders said the Russians would be more of a help than a hindrance.

Naval sources said Monday that they hoped to keep the exact area of the Operation Team Work a secret in order to prevent the prepositioning of Soviet observer ships.

But naval sources reported that Soviet planes, surface ships and submarines were shadowing the NATO maneuvers between Iceland and Norway. Red Bombers Intercepted

Two Crusader jet fighters from the U.S. aircraft carrier Independence intercepted two Soviet Bison bombers and escorted them out of the area. The U.S. and Soviet pilots waved to each other as they flew side by side. The Soviet planes were spotted 100 miles away from the Independence and never got closer than 35 miles.

Adm. Kleber S. Masterson, U.S. commander of the NATO striking fleet, said it looked like the Russians had expected there would be exercises.

"But if they had known what we were going to do, they would have concentrated their forces in particular areas instead of being scattered about," he added.

Soviets May Be "Utilized"

He said there is no intention of avoiding the Soviet forces, and that "we plan to utilize them as part of the exercise."

Rear Adm. Horace R. Law, a descendant of Britain's naval hero Lord Nelson, took a somewhat jauntily view.

"We reckon we learn more from them, having them around, than they do from us," said Law, commander of the Orange wing of NATO's contending forces.

"The Russians can tag along. If they want to learn something about operating a carrier they could learn a lot from watching the Independence, but they don't have carriers."

He said the only real danger was the risk of subsurface collision of submarines.

Stormy Seas Lash Beach At Ocean City

Fish Fleet Takes Shelter; Strong Winds Expected

OCEAN CITY, Md. (AP)—The forward edge of Hurricane Gladys sent 12-foot waves thumping against Maryland's Atlantic shore Tuesday night.

Winds over 40 miles an hour drove the coastal flood tide to four feet above normal.

No property damage was reported. On Ocean City's leeward side, the Sinepuxent Bay sloshed over the seawall and flooded large areas, adding to an earlier overflow of city storm drains.

The hurricane, still about 200 miles away at 8 p.m. Tuesday night, was expected to cause more serious flooding Wednesday.

Residents Board Up

Meanwhile, many property owners continued to secure their houses, hotels and motels against the storm. Boards covered windows and doors. Sandbags were piled around one large oceanfront motel.

The town's fleet of about 40 commercial fishing vessels was moved into sheltered harbors of Sinepuxent Bay to ride out any high winds from the hurricane.

Visitors, impervious to summer's end, donned foul weather gear and stood on the boardwalk marveling at the energy of the dark ocean.

The Coast Guard station here was placed on 24-hour alert as Phase 2 of its hurricane watch went into effect. Phase 1 is the most serious stage.

Police Force On Alert

The city's 12-man police force also was ordered on alert.

The mayor and city council made plans for the possible evacuation of the city population if conditions should demand it. Gale warnings were hoisted on Chesapeake Bay. Flooding was a danger in other tidewater areas.

Ocean City, Maryland's only community of any size on the Atlantic Coast, is a summer resort town with about 1,000 permanent, year-round residents. Many businesses along the boardwalk were boarding up for the winter today, but residents went about their business calmly.

Goldwater No Warmonger, Ike Declares

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower Tuesday night dismissed as "tommyrot" charges that Sen. Barry M. Goldwater is a warmonger.

Eisenhower made the comment during a televised appearance (National Broadcasting Co.) with the GOP Presidential candidate. The film was a half-hour commercial paid for by the Republicans.

The show, called "Conversation at Gettysburg," was filmed on the Eisenhower farm last Monday. It presented the former GOP President and the present Republican aspirant informally strolling around the farm.

It was Goldwater who brought up the subject of "warmonger." He told Eisenhower that this charge had been leveled at himself and his running mate, Rep. William E. Miller, because in their campaign they were stressing the need for a "strong America."

Eisenhower replied, "Barry in my mind this is actual tommyrot. Now, you know about war. You've been through one. I'm older than you, I've been in more. But I can tell you that no man who knows anything about war is going to be reckless about this."

The general added that the country has recognized in the Arizona senator "a man of integrity, good will, honesty, and dedication to his country."

Eisenhower himself defended the use of "brinkmanship" in foreign policy, which Goldwater also has advocated.

"After all, brinkmanship is absolutely necessary in this troubled world of ours. . . but it must be used intelligently and not just recklessly," the general said.

Rescue Near For Four Trapped In A-Test Shaft

MERCURY, Nev. (AP) — Rescuers hoped to free late Tuesday four men trapped since Saturday deep in a nuclear test hole.

They had removed most of a 1,800-foot shaft. An inspection team checked damage to elevator guide rails.

"This leads to guarded optimism that we can have them out soon," said Henry Vermilion, information officer for the Atomic Energy Commission.

Meanwhile, the men's salary is running at a double-time clip. For Sunday they will be paid at double-double.

At a $5.50 per hour wage, each trapped man had earned $973 through 65 hours — $527 for Sunday alone.

Khanh Situation Grows Brighter As Strike Ends

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Premier Nguyen Khanh's political situation brightened somewhat Tuesday. A compromise agreement ended a general strike in Saigon. The threat of a new antigovernment demonstration faded. And provincial hotspots had no fresh eruptions.

"Of course we have won," said Vo Van Tai, secretary-general of the Vietnamese Labor Confederation's Saigon council, in calling off the strike launched Monday by 20,000 workers.

The government has been forced to give in. If they don't keep their word, they know we can turn more thousands into the street."

About 2,000 workers had massed at the labor union headquarters with banners ready for a march if negotiations had failed between the union and a government team headed by Deputy Premier Nguyen Xuan Oanh.

Government negotiators apparently held the line against a labor demand for repeal of a state of emergency regulation officially barring strikes, but yielded on other points.

The government announced striking workers fired by a leading textile plant would be reinstated. It was reported also to have offered decrees banning lockouts and prohibiting employers from firing workers while the state of emergency prevails.

Communications were restored and electric power and water came on Monday night. Petroleum plants, tobacco and textile factories, dock facilities and municipal buses are expected to be back in normal operation Wednesday.

Departing from his prepared text, Johnson said the nation would extend a helping hand to the poor and the helpless.

"And we will do all these things because we love people instead of hate them; because we have faith in America, not fear of the future; because you are strong men of vision, instead of frightened cry babies; because you know it takes a man who loves his country to build a house instead of a raving, ranting demagogue who wants to tear down one."

Johnson Promises Cut In Excise Taxes

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (UP)—President Johnson stood before 3,500 cheering steelworkers Tuesday and pledged he will cut excise taxes next year as part of a six-point program designed to give every American family more money to spend.

The taxes are levied against a long list of items ranging from television sets and automobiles to furs, jewelry and even long distance telephone calls.

Johnson made the pledge after the 1.2 million-member United Steelworkers of America (USWA) gave him its unanimous endorsement.

The stage Johnson stood on to speak to the union's 12th constitutional convention was the same one upon which he accepted the Democratic nomination less than one month ago.

Johnson said that the excise tax cut will bring immediate relief to working men and women of America. He said that if the American prosperity boom continues its present trend, the average family income within the next three decades will be "twice what it is now."

Johnson said that the excise tax cut will bring immediate relief to working men and women of America. He said that if the American prosperity boom continues its present trend, the average family income within the next three decades will be "twice what it is now."

The President launched perhaps his bitterest attack of the campaign against Republican candidate Barry M. Goldwater. The 3,500 delegates and 1,200 guests applauded long and loud. They interrupted his speech between 50 and 60 times.

Departing from his prepared text, Johnson said the nation would extend a helping hand to the poor and the helpless.

Three thousand men manned the fire lines with another 1,000 in reserve. Officials said the situation might turn disastrous if any fires broke out in Southern California because many firefighters there have been speed north.

Gov. Edmund G. Brown flew from Los Angeles and made a motor inspection of the fire-charged areas in the fertile wine country around Napa and Calistoga, 30 and 60 miles northeast of San Francisco. The governor declared the Napa Valley a disaster area, opening the way for quick financial aid.

Some Roads Awash, Navy Moves Ships

Hurricane Located About 200 Miles Off Cape Hatteras

MANTEO, N.C. (AP) — Hurricane Gladys, her central winds whirling 85 to 90 miles an hour, moved Tuesday night along an erratic and slow north-west course that posed a threat to populous East Coast areas.

A hurricane watch was in effect from Cape Hatteras, N.C., to Block Island, R.I.

Gale winds and high tides dashed sea water across sand banks along North Carolina's northeast shores, flooding roads and pushing up to 24 inches of water into the village of Hatteras.

Heavy ground swells were reported as far north as Cape Cod.

All New York City defense units were alerted and key personnel were put on a standby basis. The American Red Cross activated 12 emergency district disaster offices from New Bern, N.C., to New York City.

The Weather Bureau placed Gladys about 200 miles slightly south of the east of Cape Hatteras at 5 p.m. EDT.

Gladys Large Storm

Hurricane winds extended outward about 50 miles from the center. Gales extended 400 miles over water and coastal sections to the north and about 250 miles to the south.

Ocean ships a short distance east of Cape Hatteras reported winds of 60 to 70 m.p.h. Most coastal sections from Hatteras to Virginia capes reported winds of 35 to 40 m.p.h. with higher gusts.

Flooding was predicted in low lying areas along the coast near the normal high tide. Tides of five feet above normal were expected from Cape Hatteras to Cape May, N.J., and over the lower portion of Chesapeake Bay.

Tides of two to three feet above normal were expected from Cape May to Long Island. Beach erosion was occurring along the coast and was expected to continue through Wednesday from Cape Hatteras to Long Island.

Residents of coastal areas from Cape Hatteras to the Virginia capes were advised by the Weather Bureau to move to higher ground before escape routes became inundated and impassable.

Navy Moves Warships

The Navy sent its warships from their anchorages in Hampton Roads, Va., and Newport, R.I., to safer places. Thirty-seven naval ships, including 29 destroyers, were sent from Newport to anchor in Narragansett Bay.

Sixteen planes from the carrier Essex were stored in hangars at Quonset Naval Air Station. At Boston, the Navy moved ships to sheltered berths.

Tides in the Long Island area were expected to run three to four feet above normal by Wednesday. The Coast Guard ordered three of its lightships to shore, the Barnegat to New York and the Five Fathom and Delaware to Delaware Bay.

Justice Dept. Probe Ordered

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional investigation of the Justice Department, spurred by complaints made by the Teamsters Union, was ordered Tuesday by the House Judiciary Committee.

Chairman Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., said he will do his best to see that the inquiry does not touch on the case of Teamsters President James R. Hoffa, whose conviction on jury tampering charges is awaiting appeal.

The Teamsters Union has been exerting heavy pressure on committee members since Hoffa's conviction in Chattanooga, Tenn. last spring. It charged the Justice Department and former U.S. Sen. Robert F. Kennedy with violating Hoffa's constitutional rights by spying on him and his attorneys and witnesses during the trial.

De Gaulle In Bogota; Terrorist Is Hunted

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI)—Police to the underground terrorist President Charles de Gaulle arrived Tuesday night just as the Colombian security forces, how- two hours after Colombian au- sive security measures, how- authorities announced that a top ever, kept De Gaulle far from member of the terrorist French the actual scene of violence. Secret Army Organization (OAS) Terrorists machine - gunned was at large in Bogota.

Police described the terrorist as "a major threat" to De Gaulle. The OAS has tried to kill De Gaulle several times. Extraordinary precautions against the possibility of assass- ination were taken. De Gaulle's arrival at El Dorado airport and a motorcade through the center of the city in an open car was uneventful.

An army of 8,000 troops and police were posted at the air- port and strategic points around the city. All were given a photograph of the terrorist — Pierre Chateau-Jobert, 52, and told to watch for him.

De Gaulle flew here from Caracas, Venezuela, the first stop on his 10-nation tour of Latin America. The 30-hour Venezue- lan visit was marred by new outbursts of pro-Castro ter- rorism.

Police detained 169 persons, under preventive arrest for De Gaulle's visit. The new flareup of violence in Caracas was attributed by

Miller Charges Gestapo-Like Demo Tactics

SIoux CITY, Iowa (AP)—Rep. William E. Miller said Tuesday that President Johnson is "a man who has no set of convictions except a dedication to his own political victory."

Johnson's private business dealings are "shrouded in a cloud of suspicion and doubt," Miller said. "That would make the Republican vice-presidential candidate added."

Miller, in a speech, then de- scribed himself as the target of what he called "sleazy, unsub- stantiated smears." He accused the Johnson administration of using Gestapo-like tactics.

Several agencies of govern- ment "are doing nothing these days but trying to investigate Sen. Barry Goldwater and me," Miller said, "and they can't find a single charge which they can substantiate."

In opening a 12-day campaign swing through the Midwest and Far West, Miller discussed the question of ethics in govern- ment, and allegations of con- flict-of-interest that have been raised about himself. The dis- cussions were in two formal statements issued to reporters.

in a television interview at Washington National Airport and in speeches at Fort Wayne, Ind., and Sioux City.

The emphasis on that subject followed demands by the Demo- cratic national chairman, John M. Bailey, and some Demo- cratic state chairmen for an investigation of Miller's connec- tion with the Lockport Felt Co. in his home district of upstate New York.

Bailey said the public was entitled to know "whether Mr. Miller is a congressman or a paid lobbyist for a felt company."

After making public on Sept. 6 a statement of his financial worth, Miller was asked by newsmen the source of his in- come. He said that, among other income, he received $7,500 a year as assistant secretary and director of Lockport Felt, which is headed by a personal friend, Raymond Lee.

Red Cross Activates 12 Disaster Offices

WASHINGTON (AP)—The American Red Cross said Tues- day it was activating 12 emer- gency district disaster offices from New Bern, N.C., to New York City to deal with possible effects of Hurricane Galdys.

Eastern area Red Cross head- quarters in suburban Alexandria Va., dispatched 28 disaster work- ers including six nurses to coast- al areas. Other staff members were assigned from Atlanta's disaster nerve center for the southeast.

The Elizabeth City, N.C., of- fice has opened two Red Cross shelters at Kitty Hawk, and other shelters along the East Coast are ready to be opened as soon as they are needed, officials said.

Other Red Cross district dis- aster offices are in operation at New Bern and Williamston, N. C., Newport News, Norfolk and Richmond, Va., Salisbury and Baltimore, Md., Wilmington, Del., Tom's River and Newark, N.J., and New York City.

Castro Believed Planning Supply Lift From Nassau

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP)—If none is found, one source Government sources speculated Tuesday that Fidel Castro might have opened an air route between Cuba and Nassau in the hope that he could bring home badly needed American materi- als from the Bahamas.

"We have told him that we will detain and deport any pas- sengers coming in from Cuba on his planes," one government source said. "That would make it rather pointless for him to operate a passenger service."

"We had overlooked the possi- bility that he might try to buy American spare parts, machin- ery and other goods and fly them to Cuba."

"We can buy these goods in Nassau just as well as he could in Miami."

Government officials started a hurried search of Bahamian customs laws, trying to find one that could be used to block such aerial shipments out of the is- lands.

No Defense Lag, McNamara Says

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Secre- tary of Defense Robert S. Mc- Namara said Tuesday the Unit- ed States can now and will in the future be able to "insure the destruction of both the Soviet Union and Communist China, under the worst imaginable circumstances accompanying the outbreak of war."

McNamara answered criti- cism of American defense capa- bilities in a prepared speech keynoting the national conven- tion of the American Legion.

The Republican presidential candidate, Sen. Barry Gold- water, who has been a critic of some of McNamara's defense policies, will address the Legion Wednesday.

Collegiality Idea Backed At Ecumenical

VATICAN CITY (AP)—An overwhelmingly favorable vote Tuesday carried the Vatican Ecumenical Council a step closer to accepting the sharing of authority between the Pope and his bishops, a concept with far-reaching implications for Christian unity efforts.

The council cast a series of favorable votes on different aspects of the concept — called collegiality.

A key section declaring that the Pope and bishops are mutually united in one body was accepted by a vote of 1,918 to 322.

Council experts said that with the balloting, the very core of the collegiality principle, would be completed in voting Wednes- day.

The bishops in St. Peter's will be asked then to accept or re- ject a declaration that the body of bishops shares in the Pope's full and supreme power in gov- erning the Church. Approval was expected.

Voting has been completed on 12 of 40 sections in the schema chapter establishing collegial- ity.

Council experts estimated that this represented approval of 80 per cent of the subject matter on the collegiality issue.

A final over-all vote on the entire chapter is required. Final approval will point the way toward an historic new system of government for the world's largest Christian church — some form of permanent bishop's group based here to advise and help the Pope.

Retired Dean Of Hopkins New Look For School Of Medicine Dies "Block" Urged

BALTIMORE (AP) — Dr. Al. Chesney, 76, an internist and his M.D. in 1912. He be- and retired dean of the Johns Hopkins Medical School, died at his Baltimore home, Tuesday at his Baltimore home, in 1914-17 was assistant resident physician at the Rockefeller Institute Hospital in New York City.

Dr. Chesney retired in 1953 after 24 years as dean but remained active for many years as medical consultant to the Board of Trustees of Provident Hospital and as a member of the medical advisory board of Baltimore City Hospitals.

He was the author of several books, including "Immunity in Syphilis," and "The Flowering of an Idea." He also wrote a three-volume history entitled "The Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine." The first volume was published in 1943 and the last in 1962.

He was a vigorous opponent of antivivisectionists who wished to curb the use of animals in medical research. He called the movement a "serious and crippling obstacle to the advance of medical knowledge."

Dr. Chesney received his A.B. naut on the moon.

BALTIMORE (AP) — A change in billing from strip teasers to bureaucrats on Baltimore's Block was recommended Tuesday.

The proposal to tear down the honky tonk entertainment area and replace it with a new municipal center was contained in another planning dream for downtown Baltimore.

This one overshadows a Charles Center rejuvenation begun in 1958 and in which the third office building was opened Monday.

The Charles Center project covers 22 acres at an estimated cost of $130 million. Extension of the renewal to Baltimore's entire waterfront area would encompass 128 acres at a cost of $260 million.

Mayor Theodore R. McKeldin promised to start implementing the proposal immediately. It would take 30 years to complete.

In addition to municipal offices, the vision includes a boat based on the race between the United States and the Soviet Union to place the first astro- center, parks and a science academy.

Businessmen Are Briefed On Fair Employment Law

BALTIMORE (AP) — Businessmen from the Baltimore and Washington area were advised Tuesday they will have to apply uniform standards to all job applicants and employees.

"It makes no difference how high your standards are, but it is important that you apply them uniformly to all," said Charles A. Kothe, vice president of industrial relations for the National Association of Manufacturers.

He was one of the speakers at the briefing held by the NAM to explain the fair employment practices section of the federal civil rights act.

"We're not here to poke holes through the act or to decide it," Kothe said. "It's the law now, and it reflects the conscience of America."

The attorney referred to an opinion last week by a special three-judge federal court that the equal accommodations section of the law was unconstitutional as it applied to an Alabama restaurant.

"Anyone who gets any hope from a hamburger stand in Alabama as a death knell for this law better forget it," said Kothe.

The fair employment practices section is not scheduled to become effective until next July. It would prohibit employers with 25 or more workers or labor union with at least the same number of members from discriminating because of race, color, religion, sex or national origin.

Maryland Briefs

BALTIMORE (AP)—The 98th Maryland department to file its request for funds for the next fiscal year was the first to ask for less. It came from the executive department.

Gov. Tawes is seeking $52,000, less for operating his department. The other departments which have filed appropriation requests so far want $14 million more.

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—The apple harvest continues in full swing in Western Maryland. The Maryland Crop Reporting Service said picking of Red and Golden Delicious varieties will reach a peak this week-end.

The harvest of Stayman and Allegany County Reds and Goldens started this week.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Two new residents of Prince Georges County, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick G. Drueding of Lanham, have gone to federal court seeking authority to vote in Maryland in the Nov. 3 presidential election.

The couple moved from Pennsylvania six months ago and the Prince Georges election supervisors declared them ineligible to register. The supervisors cited a Maryland law requiring a one-year residence.

The Druedings also were refused absentee ballots by Pennsylvania.

Summer In Baltimore Driest On Record

BALTIMORE (AP)—The driest summer in Baltimore since the Weather Bureau began keeping records in 1871 came to an end Tuesday with the 8:17 p.m. arrival of autumn.

The Weather Bureau said rainfall from May to Sept. 1 totaled 7.17 inches, while the normal rainfall for the period is 17.01 inches.

The previous record for dryness was in 1930 when 7.3 inches were measured in Baltimore during the four months. The monthly totals this year were 6.1 inch in May, 1.79 inches in June, 3.01 inches in July and 1.76 inches in August.

The normal rainfall is 4.15 inches in May, 3.87 in June, 4.39 in July and 4.60 in August.

Resort Plans Expansion

OCEAN CITY, Md. (AP)—The Ocean City would extend the Ocean City mayor and City Council agreed unanimously Tuesday to a plan for annexation of North Ocean City.

The annexation is contingent upon receipt of petitions signed by 25 per cent of the property owners and representing 25 per cent of the assessed valuation of property in the area.

C. Ray Hare, a member of the board of directors of the North Ocean City Improvement Association, said 25 per cent of the property owners already had signed annexation petitions. He said he foresaw no difficulty in getting the required percentage of property valuation.

Woman To Woman

By PATRICK MCCORMACK
NEW YORK (UPI) — Little things that more than $7 billion will be spent for tobacco products. They also cost a lot.

The point about all of this, says the Health Education Committee, is that a nation that can afford to spend so much on little consumption expenditures, how things ought to be spending a lot, is a spirited something whole lot more on medical research.

The biggest item of personal search pay-off cited in the return of $11.6 billion or more annually.

But don't be fooled by that. The national foundation estimates the Salk vaccine has saved about 30,000 persons from becoming victims of polio just between the years 1954 and 1960.

"This would mean the saving of about 2,000 deaths from polio and a saving in patient care costs in excess of $75 million," said the health education committee.

Through medical research, "The preservation of human life expectancy for Americans, in terms of probable life expectancy for Americans, would exceed $1 billion."

—male and female—increased from 63.3 years to 70 years in the 19 years from 1943 to 1962.

Alongside some of the personal consumption expenditures, the National Institute of Health allocation of tax dollars for medical research seems like a trifle, the committee noted.

In 1964, for example, government-sponsored research and training to save lives amounts to a little over $918 million.

During the same year, it is said, the same year, it is

Chaplin Memoirs Sold For Caviar

LONDON (UPI) — Charlie Chaplin has sold 1,000 words from his autobiography to the Soviet newspaper Izvestia for nine pounds of caviar, his publishers said Monday.

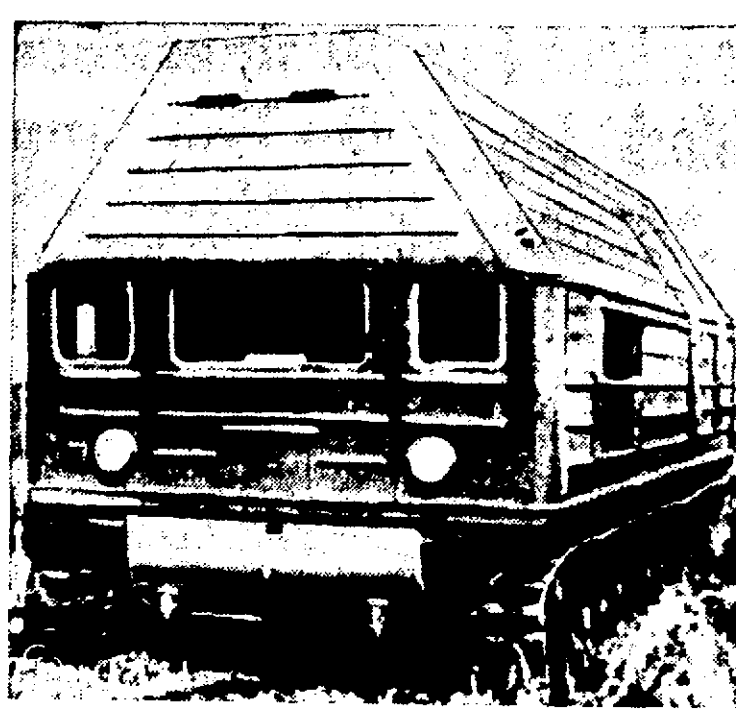

Izvestia could have published as much as it wanted without asking permission because the Soviet Union is not a member of the international copyright convention. But it asked permission "because of the great respect for which Mr. Chaplin is held in Russia," a spokesman for the publishers, Bodley Head Ltd., said.

The Chaplin family is fond of caviar, the spokesman said. The consignment from Moscow arrived by plane Thursday and was taken to a London hotel "to be kept at the disposal of Mr. Chaplin."

At the present price here for Russian caviar it is worth $400.

President Woodrow Wilson popularized the slogan "America First."

Sonar Used In Removing Metal From Boy's Eye

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A quarter-inch-long piece of brass object — which in this case was removed from the eye of out of physical sight in the eye of an eight-year-old boy Monday — was located by bouncing in a first-of-its-kind operation sound waves off it, much the same way that submarines are located undersea by sonar detection devices.

The operation was performed at Walter Reed Army Medical Center on James Cassidy of nearby Falls Church, Va.

Young James was playing with a .22 caliber short cartridge last Friday when it exploded. A chip of the brass cartridge lodged in his eye, damaging the lens.

Doctors fear that unless the brass object was taken out it would corrode, necessitating removal of the entire eye. Brass is non-magnetic and can not be lifted out by usual methods in such cases.

The sonar method previously had been tried only on animals and eye bank eyes. It never had been used on a human.

The operation involves plotting the location of the object on a tiny oscilloscope located near the patient's head.

The echoing device can come within five millimeters of the object, and then tiny extractors on the tip of the device are used to lift the object out.

Doctors believe that the Cassidy boy may not be able to have partial sight in the damaged left eye.

AF Men Take Own Sidearms Into Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Air Force officers must take their own sidearms into Viet Nam, and barter individually with the Army for ammunition for GI rifles, Rep. Richard L. Roudsbush, R-Ind., said Monday.

Roudsbush said he was told this by an unidentified Indiana military career man recently returned from duty in Viet Nam. He declined to identify his informant, say it might jeopardize the latter's military career.

Roudsbush quoted his informant as saying the Air Force purchased AR15 rifles several years ago, and that these weapons have been brought into Viet Nam by Air Force personnel.

"But the Air Force cannot get ammunition for these weapons," he wrote the congressman. "To get ammunition, Air Force officers collect captured Viet Cong weapons, trade them to other officers bound for the states, who in turn trade these weapons to Army supply sergeants who eventually send AR15 ammunition to Viet Nam via Army troops."

"Air Force officers must take their own sidearms (a virtual necessity) with them into Viet Nam as issue sidearms cannot be obtained. Likewise, there is an acute shortage of flying suits, gloves, and boots in Viet Nam, while these items pile up in warehouses at Clark (Air Force base in the Philippines), and other bases in the area."

Roudsbush quoted his informant as saying U. S. troops were forbidden to use the latest military equipment available in Viet Nam on grounds that the Geneva agreement of 1954 restricts the introduction of new weapons.

"If the Communists were living up to their end of the bargain, there would be no war in Viet Nam in the first place," he wrote Roudsbush.

"To any man on the front lines in Viet Nam we are unquestionably not winning the war there, and any relative successes announced in the newspapers of late only indicate that we are getting kicked out of Viet Nam at a slower rate than before."

Thurmond Switch Brings Political Realignment Talk

By RAYMOND LAHR
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Strom Thurmond's jump into the Republican party has rekindled talk about realigning political parties to make it easier for the voters to tell conservatives from liberals.

The outlook for something like this may be more clear after the Nov. 3 election, which offers political parties a choice between a conservative Republican national ticket and a liberal Democratic ticket.

But the recent history of American political parties makes it seem unlikely that the GOP will suddenly become an all-conservative party and the Democrats a club for liberals.

The Republicans long have worn a more conservative image than the Democrats, although there has been a broad spectrum of viewpoints in both parties.

In the GOP, the line runs from Sen. Jacob K. Javits to Sen. Barry Goldwater, the presidential nominee. The Democratic range is from Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, to the conservative Sen. Harry F. Byrd.

In today's political language, liberals are more willing than conservatives to let government — particularly the federal government — grapple with new problems.

In both the Democratic and Republican camps, the state's four populous states will cast 118 of the 270 electoral votes needed to win the election.

Any move toward a party realignment faces heavy going as long as all the states use the general ticket system which gives each state's entire bloc of electoral votes to the presidential candidate polling a plurality, however small.

A state GOP can be expected to shun a conservative label as long as it regards that label as a liability in statewide contests.

A similar trend has been indicated in such other large states as New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan and California. The conservatives have maintained control of the party in Illinois and Texas and regained it in California, but they still must show that they can win a statewide contest in California.

Although the Goldwater campaign relies heavily on votes in the South and the Midwest arm belt, his campaign managers have listed Ohio, Illinois, Texas and California as key states in his drive for the presidency.

Those four populous states will cast 118 of the 270 electoral votes needed to win the election.

Australian Describes Visit To Peking

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following dispatch provides rare insight into the enigma of Communist China, which recently has permitted the entry of a few tourists from the Western world. It was written by Harold S. Williams, an Australian businessman now living in Japan, who has traveled in the Orient for more than 40 years and whose return to the Chinese mainland took him to 12 major cities.

By HAROLD S. WILLIAMS
 Written for UPI

The road to Peking was good. Except when passing vehicles, we traveled at from 50 to 60 miles an hour most of the way, and through the towns at 25 to 35.

Apart from buses and occasional military vehicles, there was little other motor traffic on the highway, although within the city of Peking itself there are many more motor cars than in Shanghai.

Our guide's enthusiasm for the tour throughout was by motor car — a pre-liberation Humber car — which no doubt had belonged to a capitalist 14 years before. It was without heater and certainly cold in the sub-zero temperature, but otherwise it was excellently equipped and maintained.

It performed its part of the show magnificently. As we stepped out of it at the very end of the tour, the tire beneath our feet subsided with a slow but distinctly audible hiss.

There was a bar on every floor of the hotel but there did not appear to be overmuch drinking, and certainly nothing even faintly resembling drunkenness, there or elsewhere.

Opening lead: Five of ♠.
North may not have lodged the proper complaint against his partner in today's hand, when he criticized South for not bidding three no trump. The North's contention in favor of the shorter lead to game possesses some merit, it is South's plan of campaign at his five diamond contract that draws our main criticism.
When North made a take-out double, South properly showed his strength by bidding two diamonds, one more than was necessary. North raised to three and South, influenced by his singleton, decided to bid game in diamonds. However, inasmuch as North is marked with values in the major suits, a no trump game might have been a more prudent undertaking.

Circle Will Visit County Home

A trip to the Allegany County Home in conjunction with the October meeting of the Barbara Wilson-Patricia Yetter Circle of the First Methodist Church was planned at the regular session held at the home of Mrs. Burr James, Glenn Street.

Deviations were conducted by Mrs. James and Mrs. A. L. Brown, and featured a poem written about the WSCS by Mrs. James. Mrs. Everett Culp told of her visit to Haiti. The study book was conducted by Mrs. Lucy Baisley.

October 8 the group will visit the county home. Mrs. James Stafford will have charge of the program. A meeting will follow at the home of Mrs. C. E. Crabtree, 138 Independence Street. Mrs. Arnett Arrington will be cohostess. Mrs. C. B. Pardew will continue the study book, "Creation Studies."

A thank you note from the Union Rescue Mission was read. Last month various gifts were presented to the mission. This month circle members reported completion of eight pairs of curtains for the center.

Others attending were Mrs. Viola Bray, Mrs. John Patton, Mrs. C. M. Cook, Mrs. Willis Brown, Mrs. Herman Cunningham, Mrs. Thelma Grayson, Mrs. C. E. Crabtree, Mrs. S. J. Smith and Thomas Brown.

Captain and Mrs. Willy Lowe and family were guests of Mrs. Mary Jewell, Ridgeley, recently while en route home to Dayton, Ohio, from Attleboro, Mass., where they attended the funeral of Capt. Lowe's father.

West opened the five of clubs, East played the jack and declarer permitted him to hold the trick. South won the continuation with the ace of clubs and drew the trump. He played a heart next; however, West put up the ace and cashed the setting trick with the king of clubs.

North criticized his partner for not bidding three no trump and yet, with only eight top tricks, South would have been confronted with the same problem at that contract if West led a club. With the opponents attacking his weak spot and the ace of hearts not yet dislodged, declarer must make an attempt to disrupt their line of communications.

South's strategy in ducking the first round of clubs might have worked out, if there were any chance that East had the ace of hearts and a doubleton club for, when East is in with the top heart if he is unable to lead a third club, South can eventually discard dummy's last club on the jack of hearts.

In light of West's opening bid, however, he was clearly marked with the ace of hearts, and South's only remote chance hinged on winning the first lead in the hope that East had the queen-jack alone in clubs. Observe that, by playing the ace of clubs at trick one, declarer can actually block the suit. When West is in with the ace of hearts, the defense can take only one club trick whether West cashes the king of clubs or underleads it. South regains the lead in time to obtain the necessary discard.

Ann Landers . . . Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I hope you will print my letter so my stepmother will see it. I can write things on paper that I can't say.

I am 13 years old. My mother died when I was small — not even big enough to go to school. My father married a very nice woman. I love my stepmother but I don't think she knows it and I don't know how to tell her.

Sometimes I am hateful and mean to her when she tells me what to do. I argue with her even though I know she is right. I feel ashamed of myself later but I can't tell her I am sorry.

I know she reads your column every day because she talks about it. Please print my letter so she will see it and realize how much I love her. I'm sure my real mother is happy in heaven knowing my stepmother is so wonderful.

DEAR FRIEND: I am not printing your initials or your city because I want every stepmother who reads this to think perhaps your beautiful letter was written by her stepchild.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband is a bartender. He comes home from work six nights a week at about 3 a.m.

He expects me to get out of bed at that crazy hour and fix supper for him. It has caused a lot of arguments and now I'm writing to you for a solution.

We have two children who get up at 7:30 a.m. and go to school. I have to fix them breakfast or they will go without it. When I give my husband supper at 3 a.m. it breaks up my whole night's sleep and I drag around the next day half dead. Is this fair?

He used to have a day job but he makes more money as a bartender. For the first time we are able to pay our bills and save something. Please give me an answer to this one.—BRICK WALL

DEAR BRICK: If your husband were coming home at 3 a.m. after a night of girl-chasing I would say let him fix his own supper. But this man is working at a job.

You seem delighted with the additional income but you are unwilling to make any personal sacrifices. Is this fair?

Adjust your life to suit his "crazy hours" even if it means napping during the daytime. Your husband is entitled to a hot supper when he comes home from work and you should be happy to fix it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I would like your advice on how to deal with a problem shared by dozens of secretaries. The telephone manners of the bosses' wives are appalling.

They call the office several times a day and start off with: "Is HE there?" "Where is HE?" or "Let me talk to HIM." Although they have seen us hundreds of times, they never call us by name or say, "How are you today?" It's almost as if we are too stupid or too insignificant to bother with. Never is there a "Please," or a "Thank you."

How do you recommend we deal with such wives?—HIRE HELP

DEAR HELP: Nothing accentuates rudeness like courtesy. Put extra sugar and honey in your voice and pour it on, Sister.

When Mrs. Gotrocks calls and barks "Is HE there?" reply with "Good morning, Mrs. G. R. Of course Mr. G. R. is here. I'll put him right through. Just one moment, please."

Even the most obtuse clod will get the pitch eventually.

Do you feel ill at ease — out of it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for ANN LANDERS' new booklet, "The Key To Popularity," enclosing with your request 35c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Your Proper Foundation

Today, you need a whole wardrobe of foundations to look your trimmest at all times. Wearing the same type under a tennis dress, a tailored suit and a figure-clinging evening dress is about as effective as wearing a snap brim hat with a strapless dinner gown.

To make the most of your figure and your clothes, you need a different type for sportswear, streetwear and evening wear. If your wardrobe contains all three types of dress, and that is true, no matter what your age or figure.

Since sports activities call for freedom of movement, sports clothes are designed with an easy fit. You'll find that girdles designed for sportswear are also less confining to your figure, and being lighter in weight allow you greater freedom of action. A sturdy pantie girdle and brassiere will give all the support your figure needs and enough definition to your contours to make your clothes look as well tailored as they are.

For a neat silhouette under figure-fitting daytime suits and dresses, wear standard girdles and brassieres or an all-in-one garment. These should be of a curve-moulding design with added control at the bust, waist or hip as indicated by your individual figure problems.

The best foundation for dress and evening wear is the all-in-one. Possible exceptions: Teen and junior figures. This type of garment with or without straps has the virtue of a slim, unbroken line under sleek, figure-revealing dresses.

There's no question about it—the woman who is smart about her figure always looks smart in her clothes! The middle of summer is no time to try to disprove their theory, either. These are the days when you should use every means at your command to refine your figure to conform to the straight-hung fall clothes that are sure-as-shootin' coming your way.

FIGURED FOR YOU gives expert detailed instructions and illustrates how to select foundations, garments that provide comfort, control and healthful support for your individual type of figure. Italian Tailors Showing New Trend In Styling

By WALTER LOGAN
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) — Italian tailors are among the best in the world and their straight forward business suits look pretty much like straightforward business suits anywhere else. When they start going far out, though, they go farther out than anybody.

What will come of the recent showings of Fall and Winter clothes by some of Italy's top tailors — Brioni, Datti, Franzoni and Litrico — remains to be seen. One of the coats shown was a long frock coat of the round-the-world-in-80-days era.

Brioni's stylings tended to feature a softened look. Jackets were subtly fitted and the line was cut high. Trousers were slim and cuffed. For evening, he showed dinner jackets in multicolor silks patterned with small designs (in addition to formal dinner jackets in wool mohair and silk shantung.)

One Brioni jacket was a honey-colored worsted wool cardigan with pockets slitch outlined. Another was a beige mohair jacket with a brown overcheck and brown buckskin buttons. The jacket was pinched at the waist, flared at the bottom and the checks on the pockets ran at a 45 degree angle to the rest of the jacket.

Datti's unique stylings relied heavily on new fabrics, definite detailing and intricate seaming. One sports jacket had long pointed flaps which came down and buttoned over each breast pocket. Another had obliquely set patch pockets which gave a V-line pointing downward.

Datti also advocated coordinates in separate fabrics for business wear. Business suits came out as combinations of darker coats worn with lighter trousers or vice versa. A grey tweed coat was shown with brown trousers, a camel jacket with grey pants.

Franzoni came up with the frock coat, inspired by Passerpartout, companion to Phineas Phogg on that trip around the world. One was in herringbone-patterned corduroy for a "squire's country weekend." Shoulders were narrow, lapels wide, waist fitted, color: squirrel brown.

Franzoni showed heavy tweed coats in loden with heavier collars, bottle blue and Prussian green velvet suits and coats, a belted sportsjacket with wide pointed lapels. His modern line featured a highwaisted, narrow shouldered look with shawl collar and single vent.

Litrico's fashions for Fall and Winter were slightly Edwardian in feeling. Shoulders were unpadded and slightly raised. Jackets were slightly cut away from bottom button to hem, giving a slimming look. Coats were on the short side and the top buttons a bit higher. He hates shawl collars and his single breasted dinner jacket had peaked lapels detailed with braiding.

One of Litrico's handsomer efforts was a blue sports jacket in wool which was woven to look like linen. It had fairly wide lapels, two deep vents, regular patch pockets and a slanted breast pocket.

Another Litrico specialty was a light beige blazer coat in a much longer line than usually seen. Trousers widened slightly at the instep, a styling prophetic of some 1965 European styles. The same long line was seen in a double-breasted dark blue flannel blazer worn with honey beige gabardine pants.

Tourists From Wyoming Feel At Home Anywhere

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI)—vast sections of the Wyoming Territory terrain. There is a Wyoming Valley in Pennsylvania, and a Wyoming Valley in New York. But the word "Wyoming" as applied to the state, first was named by a settler who used by a Congressman Ashley came to Michigan from New York's Wyoming Valley. The city has a population now of about 53,000. It uses a lot of old west in civic promotion. It holds its own annual rodeo and will be the site Sept. 26 of a national Indian Pow-wow. Wyoming City is rich in Indian lore. There are plans underway to make the city the geographical center of Indian culture east of the Rockies. It also has provided two acres of its La Mar Park for the official home grounds of the Grand Valley Indian Lodge. Also in the park is the site for a proposed village for Indians. About 1,000 Indians from tribes as far away as Montreal, the Dakotas, and Oklahoma are expected to attend the Sept. 26 Pow-wow.

And in and near the city, University of Michigan archeologists have explored mounds of the ancient Hopewell Indians. The migration of the Hopewells is dated at 2,000 years ago. The Potawatomi and Miami also once farmed, fought and hunted in the area.

The Communist organ said these Warsaw Pact maneuvers were designed to test coordination of action and tactical readiness of the different forces.

Dr. Milton I. Levine, internationally known authority on sex education, says in the forward: "Sooner or later every parent finds himself face-to-face with the problem of sex education. We try to answer the many questions of the growing child — but when these questions deal with sex, reproduction and the feelings of the adolescent, we find ourselves bewildered."

"Most modern parents realize the almost vital importance of adequate sex education. They are aware of its influence on the child's normal development, his later adjustment to the opposite sex, and his ultimate happiness. Unfortunately, most of us are products of a generation where sex talk was taboo."

The Illinois society, meanwhile, suggested that parents who are uncomfortable about discussing sex matters with their children ask themselves if their sex attitudes are completely mature or if they themselves have lingering doubts, fears and guilt. The society added that "sex education...when woven into the moral fabric of your children at an early age and fortified with parental love and understanding, will yield a superior material that is highly resistant to illicit sexual temptations."

It takes a whole book to answer that question, according to the Child Study Association of America, New York, the parent education organization which has been counseling families since 1888.

The book, "What to Tell Your Children about Sex," will be published early in October (Duell, Sloan and Pearce). It will be available in bookstores or from the association, 9 E. 89th St., New York, N. Y.

In convenient question and answer form, written simply and plainly, the book covers the whole range of sex questions teenagers and other youngsters will ask. The areas covered include conception, birth, growth, pre-adolescent and young adult sexual discovery.

Book To Help Sex Education

CHICAGO (UPI) — Here's help for parents concerned about the sex attitudes — and activities — of teenagers.

The Illinois State Medical Society reports that the appalling number of teenage pregnancies, criminal abortions and venereal disease victims presents a valid basis for this concern.

It adds that "Sex education, like charity, begins at home."

The society suggests that parents face up to the responsibility of such education. There is evidence that parents either ignore their roles as sex educators or that they are not sufficiently informed to fulfill it.

"It has become commonplace," the society said, "for parents to shrug off the responsibility of sex education by asserting that their children know more about the subject than they do."

"This is seldom the case; and when it is the case, it can easily be corrected with help from booklets available from local church groups, medical societies or other expert organizations."

What should you tell your children?

It takes a whole book to answer that question, according to the Child Study Association of America, New York, the parent education organization which has been counseling families since 1888.

The book, "What to Tell Your Children about Sex," will be published early in October (Duell, Sloan and Pearce). It will be available in bookstores or from the association, 9 E. 89th St., New York, N. Y.

In convenient question and answer form, written simply and plainly, the book covers the whole range of sex questions teenagers and other youngsters will ask. The areas covered include conception, birth, growth, pre-adolescent and young adult sexual discovery.

Dr. Milton I. Levine, internationally known authority on sex education, says in the forward: "Sooner or later every parent finds himself face-to-face with the problem of sex education. We try to answer the many questions of the growing child — but when these questions deal with sex, reproduction and the feelings of the adolescent, we find ourselves bewildered."

"Most modern parents realize the almost vital importance of adequate sex education. They are aware of its influence on the child's normal development, his later adjustment to the opposite sex, and his ultimate happiness. Unfortunately, most of us are products of a generation where sex talk was taboo."

The Illinois society, meanwhile, suggested that parents who are uncomfortable about discussing sex matters with their children ask themselves if their sex attitudes are completely mature or if they themselves have lingering doubts, fears and guilt. The society added that "sex education...when woven into the moral fabric of your children at an early age and fortified with parental love and understanding, will yield a superior material that is highly resistant to illicit sexual temptations."

Girls Given Tips On How To Get Married

NEW YORK (UPI) — Females who don't want to be married within a year, and 50 percent of the girls received spinsters ought to play it cool — and plan to marry the boy.

This advice comes from a firm that makes a business of knowing something about courtship and marriage, for the product the outfit makes keeps it involved in the warp and woof of romantic life.

The manufacturer of cedar chests, the Lane Co., figure the sweetheart chests are an intricate part of the romance theme.

An opinion research survey revealed that four out of five girls who received chests were married within a year, and 50 percent of the girls received their hope chests from beaux.

Now, the company comes up with information that can help young people in love keep cool heads. According to the firm's consultant in matters romantic, there are four techniques which seem to aid couples in improving emotional communication.

The advice: —The technique of asking. —You can never assume you know what your beau means by a phrase, gesture or voice-tone. Remember that almost always there is no right or wrong side but there are different sides. The difference can be reduced or removed—but not until you stand by the explanation. Only if he says "yes, that's right" can you feel that you're both on the right track toward emotional understanding.

—Never generalize about your fiancé or beau's feelings. It is vital for couples to learn that feelings, often irrational or non-rational, rather than logic motivate actions.

—Never assume there is a right or wrong about anything. Remember that almost always there is no right or wrong side to see what goes on beneath them.

Venus, most brilliant and beautiful of the planets, is surrounded by such a thick layer of clouds that we have never been able to see what goes on beneath them.

The Congress is still in session, service. And yet it is being considered in a very partisan way. Take the question of the Pover- tial Convention in San Fran- ty Bill. While I think it is unfor- tate that we labeled the Eco- nomic Opportunities Act — The Democratic National Con- vention in Atlantic City. It is at- most unprecedented that the Congress should be in post-con- tional session after such an in- terval. Both of our national Par- ties have chosen their Presiden- tial nominees. Our platforms have been adopted. Partisan lines have been hardened. And yet the Congress drags on the post-convention ses- sion to the detriment of the peo- ple of this country.

I am deeply concerned that we are still considering and propos- ing to further consider matters of legislative importance which will af- fect the American people for gen- erations. Yet we are meeting in Washington in an atmosphere which is not conducive to the kind of mature and positive delib- eration that is necessary for the passage of good laws.

In the four years I have been in Congress it has been my con- cept that my job was to try to consider each legislative propos- al to make it better, if there is any way to improve it—to amend it—to refine it—to improve every kind of law which is before the House of Representatives for ac- tion. In order to give this kind of constructive and positive legis- lative consideration to laws—to the bills that are before us—it is necessary that Members should meet in an atmosphere which is devoid of rigid party lines as nearly as possible. It is necessary that the Members should throw away their partisan stance which is a part of course, of the life of a Member of Congress outside of Washing- ton, but which should not be carried to undue lengths within the Capital itself. Yet we find that we are in just that kind of an at- mosphere today. We are in the heat of a campaign. Many Mem- bers of Congress go home to en- gage in bitter, partisan cam- paigns at night and when they come back to deliberate on mat- ters of national importance dur- ing the day too often they bring with them the bitterness and par- tisanship of the night before. In my judgment this is the wrong way for a great nation to legis- late.

There are a number of very im- portant matters that are now be- fore the Congress. Take the ques- tion of Medicare—while I have consistently doubted the wisdom of marrying the problem of med- ical assistance for our Senior Cit- izens to the Social Security Sys- tem, certainly I appreciate and sympathize with the tremendous problem that exists for getting medical assistance to our Senior Citizens—and, in fact, to all our citizens. This is the kind of prob- lem that demands the best brains and the best consideration of all the Members of Congress. It should not be decided as a mat- ter of partisan politics. We should be getting the best solution so that our people get the best kind of

LaVale Group Seeks To Have Road Built

A number of road matters were discussed at yesterday's session of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners.

Kennt Fadinger, who has built nine homes on Alendale Street in LaVale, appeared before the board to determine what must be done to place the street in the county system.

Mr. Fadinger said he and the property owners were interested in having the road constructed at their expense. He was instructed to confer with Harry T. Skelly, roads supervisor, to obtain the specifications to which the roadway must be built.

Commissioner Russell Carter said that if the road is built to these specifications, the county would accept it into the roads system.

John Foote, Lonaconing, appeared before the board concerning a roadway above the Dan's Mountain Recreation Area near Lonaconing. He said that school bus service has been stopped this year due to the condition of the roadway.

William A. Miller, city, wrote the board a letter of thanks for a report on a complaint he had made concerning Cresap Mill Road on which he owns property.

Mr. Skelly reported that the Fessler Road is not in the county system, but that a culvert at the intersection of this road and Mt. Pleasant Road will be repaired to eliminate washing during time of rainfall.

Walter N. Yoder and Sons, plumbing and heating contractors, submitted a bond of $1,200 for the installation of a water line into property off the Ponto Road.

Route 40 Group Gives Support To Zoning Plan

The Route 40 Association, Inc., a group which is promoting tourism and other economic matters in Allegany County, yesterday submitted a resolution to the Board of County Commissioners favoring zoning and urging that it be adopted forthwith.

The board of directors of the association met Monday night at the home of Edward Haber, Baltimore Pike, the group's president and unanimously adopted a resolution in favor of the permanent zoning ordinance.

The resolution stated in part: "The need for a permanent zoning law and the Planning Commission for Allegany County is a must for the future progress of the county. All the people of the county deserve the protection of a Planning and Zoning Commission under the direction of a permanent zoning ordinance by the county commissioners."

"The Route 40 Association goes on record backing to the fullest a permanent ordinance for the Planning and Zoning Commission for the county."

"The Board of County Commissioners is urged to adopt the Planning and Zoning Commission's permanent zoning ordinance forthwith."

The group discussed the zoning ordinance and the other phases of the Planning and Zoning Commission's program at length prior to adopting the resolution.

It was the general consensus that without the zoning ordinance and other programs of the Planning and Zoning Commission the county could not utilize to the fullest its resources and provide for the general welfare of the residents of the county.

Local Dairy Is Granted Tax Exemption By County

The Liberty Milk Company yesterday was granted a tax exemption of $12,000 by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners on a new building erected in an expansion program this year.

Gorman E. Getty, attorney for the company, told the commissioners at its session as a Board of Assessment Review that the purpose of the law passed more than ten years ago was to encourage new industry and also those which were already located here.

In connection with the proviso that expansion must be under manufacturing, Mr. Getty cited numerous court rulings in which manufacturing was termed "transformation" and under those rulings the Liberty Milk Company qualified.

Mr. Getty pointed out that the plant receives raw milk which is pasteurized, homogenized and thus made suitable for human consumption. The company also makes cottage cheese, ice cream, egg nog and related milk products, which are all manufacturing, he added.

The commissioners also granted abatements totaling $71,000 for the county tax collector on delinquent tax bills of the past few years.

John Stitely, supervisor of assessments, submitted the list of abatements, which he said had been requested by the tax collector.

About 70 per cent of these abatements concerned traders or mobile homes, Mr. Stitely said. Some of them had been repossessed, others moved to other areas.

Named to the building committee by the post commander were Lester Lewis, chairman, Jack Herbaugh, Robert Magruder, Eugene Muligan, James Phillips, Edmund Poling and Eugene Weber.

Plans for the project were aired at a recent meeting called by the post's executive committee during which a voice vote approved a motion for the addition of a second floor to the post home.

Mr. Wolfe said it was the consensus that the addition of a second floor would best tie in with the post's many and varied programs.

It also was pointed out that such an improvement would enable Post 136 to cater to several activities at the same time without encountering the space and parking problems the post presently must contend with.

Mr. Wolfe explained the post sponsors a Ridgeley Teen Club and Little League baseball team, both of which use the post facilities, and which with the expansion will be able to conduct their own affairs without interfering with adult programs.

City Council Decides To Delay Downtown Traffic Survey

The Mayor and Council has decided not to undertake a downtown traffic survey "at this time."

Mayor Earl D. Chanty said council met following Monday's regular session in his office.

It was learned that two major reasons for delaying the survey were the cost, and comment favoring a waiting period until the Cumberland Thruway is completed.

Council had appropriated $30,000 for the survey when it set up its 1964-65 budget recently.

The traffic survey had been supported by the Chamber of Commerce, Downtown Merchants Association, other groups and individuals from the standpoint of traffic's effect on the downtown area. The city-appointed Transportation Committee also urged some action be taken on the proposal.

Council had contacted several firms which do traffic survey work, and these firms had sent representatives here to look over the situation. In each instance, discussions never got beyond the preliminary stage and estimates of these preliminary studies ranged from $2,500 to $10,000.

Representative engineers from the firms felt that past studies made on the local traffic situation should be evaluated before they could furnish a firm estimate on the cost and a complete plan on the movement of traffic.

Based on these studies of previous surveys, the visiting engineers said they could tell the city for an additional amount to be set forth at that time.

London Restaurants Sharply Criticized

ONFORD, England (UPI)—E. C. Garner, chairman of the association of British Travel Agents, said in a speech that London has some excellent restaurants but...

"Take pot luck and you will probably find your appetite is not satisfied, but is simply hit on the head with a blunt instrument as you rise from a not-too-clean tablecloth filled with a stodge of overcooked meat, flabby salad, sweet pudding or prunes and custard."

Finnigan's Hollywood

BY JOSEPH FINNIGAN

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—The professional image of Rod Steiger does not remotely resemble that of a knee-slapping, laughing clown.

Indeed, he is best known for his portrayal of maladjusted individuals—killers, crooks and assorted dingbats.

Steiger returned to Hollywood recently to take his first film comedy part. For the past 18 months, he has been avoiding the place as if it were closed. He came back to play a role in the satirical movie, "The Loved Ones."

Rod talked about his new role while sitting behind an old house located in downtown Los Angeles where the film company was shooting a location scene.

Asked if he ever played a film comedy role before, Steiger said his audiences may have laughed at some of his film portrayals, "but they were not supposed to be laughed at."

"I'm not a comedian," he said. "I don't do pratfalls, although I respect those who do it. I don't have that back-ground. What I have to do here is create a character who appears funny in a given situation."

Steiger left Hollywood because he did not like roles offered him. Some producers thought of him only in terms of the notorious gangster Al Capone. Rod gave a most vivid portrayal of Capone in a film story on the mobster's life.

"Usually out here if you get typed as a heavy they don't think of you as anything else," said Rod, registering a familiar complaint of actors.

"The level of material, the scripts they sent me, I wasn't interested. I think the level of writing has been low. Now, it's coming back. They're starting to do things that are different."

After he left here, he made two pictures in Italy and one in New York.

"I've been lucky," Steiger said. "You hit a streak of good parts. If you don't find parts that you feel are worth doing, you've got to back off. It becomes a question of what to do if you have a family. Can you afford to protect these principles? If I didn't work for years I could meet the bills by teaching acting."

His comedy part is a challenge.

"I consider comedy as important as tragedy," he said. "I think of it as a challenge which has the possibility of defeat and victory."

"I'm liable to become popular with a whole new group of people," he concluded. "I'm getting tired of people seeing me as Capone."

Mrs. Humphrey Visits State

GAITHERSBURG, Md. (AP) — Mrs. Hubert H. Humphrey said Tuesday the limited nuclear test ban treaty "is more than a good first step on the road to disarmament."

The wife of the Democratic vice presidential nominee made her remarks at a meeting of the Women's Democratic Club of Montgomery County.

Humphrey had a major role in pushing the test ban treaty. "Because of the test ban treaty," Mrs. Humphrey said, "poisonous fallout is no longer being injected into the air we breathe. The purity of the milk our children drink is no longer threatened by radioactive contamination. And because of this treaty, the development of nuclear weapons by countries which do not already have them is less likely."

He said the meeting will be devoted to a review of roads to be laid out in the subdivision, including the one serving the new high school, and plans for handling the storm water drainage from the new hospital and school.

Amish Order Exemption Opinion Will Be Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate and House conferees were reported Tuesday to have asked the Justice Department for a legal opinion on a proposed exemption for the Old Order Amish from the social security program.

The conferees, who are attempting to iron out differences in House and Senate versions of a bill to increase social security benefits, were reported to have discussed the exemption question tentatively without reaching a decision.

The Senate added the Amish exemption as an amendment to the bill. It also added a health care for the aged provision. One source said the outlook for final passage of the proposed exemption this year appears to be bright on the Justice Department's side.

Our Soldiers And The Wall

The most startling part of the rescue of a refugee from Communist East Berlin by an American GI who pulled the German over the Berlin wall is not that it happened—but that it has not happened before. And the fact that American officials made a point of saying that it was the first time such a rescue has taken place.

Undoubtedly there are reasons American GIs have, not to take actions at the wall that would provoke retaliation. One reason is the very tenuous situation U. S. forces find themselves in in Berlin, cut off from direct access to supporting forces.

But it is hard to believe that American soldiers have not wanted to help refugees in the past. And it seems quite cruel and heartless of the U. S. not to permit them to do so—even at the risk of a border incident.

After all, how great is that risk? The Russians are not likely to let the East Germans pull them into a war with the U. S. over a Berlin wall incident. When the Communists want a war, they will pick their own time and place to begin it.

Somehow the American attitude toward the wall—from the first moment its construction was started in 1961 and when it could have been halted with a single U. S. bulldozer—has been too much one of acceptance. The fact that it is only now, three years after the erection of the Berlin wall, that American GIs are permitted to help refugees over it—this is shocking.

These Days

By John Chamberlain

Is Thurmond A Portent?

The age that was called Edwardian in England and Rooseveltian (for Theodore) in America is far away. In that distant pre-1914 social climate, before people watched public opinion polls to see how they should think, the man who nailed his banner to the mast was considerably less of a rarity than is the case today. Winston Churchill, a product of that era, "crossed the aisle" in Commons twice in his long career. Teddy Roosevelt led his followers out of the Republican Party in 1912.

Since that time "crossing the aisle" for the sake of principle has become less common. Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon did it when he quit the Republican Party to become, first, an independent, and, later, a Democrat. Now Senator Strom Thurmond of South Carolina has pulled a Morse in reverse: he has left the Democratic Party to become a Republican in a Southern state that has never gone as far towards voting for Republicans in Presidential years as some of its neighbors below the Mason-Dixon Line. In 1960, the Republicans, under Nixon, picked up the electoral votes of Florida, Virginia and Tennessee, but South Carolina stayed with Kennedy. Yet it is Strom Thurmond who is now joining the Republican Party, not Harry Byrd of Virginia.

Strom Thurmond is obviously a man of great courage. He fought in World War II, coming out of it a lieutenant colonel, and he holds sixteen medals, decorations and awards for the military service that has made him a major general in the Reserve. He won one big political victory in his home state as a write-in candidate for Senator. But, the nerviest thing he has ever done is to quit the Democratic Party in a year which, if the preliminary polls are to be believed, will produce a landslide for a Southern Democrat, Lyndon B. Johnson. He stands to lose his committee assignment seniority in the Senate, and, if Barry Goldwater takes a bad licking, there is no reason to believe the Senatorial Republicans will welcome him with open arms. At least the Republicans of the Javits-Keating-Hugh Scott persuasion won't.

The titillating question, however, is whether Strom Thurmond's latest demonstration of courage should turn out to be in tune with political realities which a communist living in the Northeastern section of the United States is not in a good position to measure. Other Southern Democratic Senators who don't see eye to eye with Lyndon Johnson stick quietly to their party, but in the case of such veterans as Russell of Georgia and Byrd of Virginia it could be just a question of age. One does not easily begin a new career when one is virtually on the verge of retirement.

Strom Thurmond, though he is sixty-one, represents a younger element. And perhaps this element has seen the handwriting on the wall. The South, in 1948, was not ready to go Republican: even with the Dixiecrat walk-out it gave fifty per cent of its vote to Harry Truman. Tom Dewey got a mere twenty-five per cent. But the 1952 Republicans, under Eisenhower, made it a horse race throughout the South, and in 1956 Eisenhower actually achieved a Dixie plurality over Adlai Stevenson, which made the Republican Party the leading Southern party. The gains were held by Richard Nixon in 1960, when John F. Kennedy won a majority of Southern votes by a mere eyelash.

A Northerner can only guess at what goes on in Southern minds, but the statistics would seem to prove that if a Republican candidate for President can get roughly half the Southern vote in 1952, 1956 and 1960 without any particular local organization, a Republican in 1964 or 1968 might do much better than that with a genuine Southern Republican Party behind him. Maybe Strom Thurmond knows the realities of his own state and of the South as a whole as no Northern commentator can know them.

Regardless of what happens to the Goldwater ticket nationally, it will be a gain for political sanity if the South is to become a genuine two-party region, with Republicans organized to compete for every office. The new Republican Senator from South Carolina may prove to be the architect of a most fruitful trend.

'Why Did I Tie This Thing So Tight?

'Goldfinger' Premiere Termed Real Whingding

LONDON

By John Crosby

I went to a real whingding of a premiere the other night of "Goldfinger," the latest of the James Bond epics, in Leicester Square in dear old London town. My goodness, I haven't seen a crush like that since the days of Jean Harlow.

Movie premieres—the lights, the celebrities, black tie, all that jazz—are relatively new here. Leicester Square looked like Red Square during an important Khrushchev speech. London bobbies with locked hands holding back the pressing throng, all aflame with passion to get close to that giant of the silver screen, Sean Connery.

I felt like sending a telegram (cribbing from a famous English telegram half a century ago) to David Selznick: HEROSISM IS NOT DEAD. LETTER FOLLOWS.

Movie premieres like this, I explained to my companion, an English girl, were pretty old hat in New York to the point where it was pretty hard to get people even in the theater, much less outside of it.

"We English are so naive," murmured the English girl. "That's why we have a Queen."

Of course, you might say I'm contradicted by all those screaming mobs chasing the Beatles around the U. S. A., but what the hell, those are teenagers. These English were not teenagers, but a real cross-section—young, old, middle, and small children. In fact, we had a terrible time getting into the theater. Two hours later, when the film ended, they were still there waiting to get a glimpse of Honor Blackman. I don't think you know about Honor Blackman back in the States. Well, she had a TV show called "The Avengers," in which she tossed men into walls like basketballs and became a sort of local folk heroine.

Now, as the picture, I suppose every man, woman, and child over the age of three knows by now that Goldfinger is out to rob Fort Knox of its $15 billion in gold bullion. The Fort Knox people wouldn't let the "Goldfinger" set designer into the joint to check the dimensions, so he dreamed up his own interior—and not bad, either.

While waiting an interminable time for the picture to start, I explained to my companion that the reason the set designer wasn't allowed into Fort Knox was that there really isn't $15 billion in gold bullion there any more. We'd spent it all on space probes years ago. There's nothing in Fort Knox now, I told her, but a huge pile of IOUs and, my God, if Smersh got hold of that information, American world credit would collapse. Red China would take India, Russia would take West Germany, North Viet Nam would take South Viet Nam, the capitalist system would collapse, and no one would have enough money to go to James Bond epics and that would be a great pity.

This is the third Bond picture and as an old expert at keeping his ear to the ground I must warn you about a small cloud no bigger

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

JOHNSON'S SECRECY—During the months he has spent in the White House, President Johnson has shown a marked preference for secrecy in both his appointments and his personal plans.

His concealment of his selection of Hubert Humphrey as his Vice Presidential runningmate until the last possible moment is a case in point, as is his last minute disclosures of his personal travel plans, particularly to and from his Texas ranch.

This tight-lipped policy has some Democratic professionals worried. They fear that he may continue the campaign to withhold disclosure of his movements around the country until the last possible moment. These officials are worried that they won't be given time to round up huge crowds for campaign speeches, receptions and parades.

RIGHT TO ORGANIZE—A representative of a laborers' union decided recently that the six White House groundskeepers needed protection and decided to organize them. He was making some headway, too.

A member of the White House staff learned of the effort, however, and called it to the attention of a high official of the AFL-CIO. While he didn't say so in so many words, the general idea of the talk was to suggest that the labor official contact his affiliate's organizer and call the whole thing off. Which is what happened, of course.

There's no indication that President Johnson was ever aware of the organizing effort or played any part in squelching it.

New Research On Teenagers Acne Problems

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

A dermatologist from San Antonio writes: "I think you could do a great service to teenagers and their parents by informing them of the great strides medical science has made in the management of complexion problems. As a dermatologist, I am appalled at the lack of knowledge and understanding of the subject among parents and family doctors. Scarring occurs in 20 per cent and this could have been prevented in many of these youngsters with proper care."

The letter was timely because I was just about to write on several suggestions for acne. A team from Boston university medical center felt the same way because they sent out a news release criticizing parents and physicians for taking the attitude that nothing can be done. This leads to unintentional and undeserved neglect. This, in turn, offers little solace to the self-conscious teenager with blackheads and pimples.

The Boston group is working on hormones that will decrease the activity of the oil-producing glands. They are aiming at excessive amounts of oily material (sebum) that irritates the skin to form pimples. Meanwhile, they suggest the use of special soaps, drying and peeling lotions, and ultraviolet light.

A Tucson skin specialist traced the flare-up of acne among girls 20 years of age and younger to the use of hair spray. Older girls developed a slight thinning of the frontal hair. If these problems exist, stop spraying or wear a cosmetic mask.

From the University of Pennsylvania comes a report on the benefits derived from the proper use of a comedo extractor. Dr. Edmund D. Lowmyer did several control studies on adolescents with acne and found that fewer inflammatory lesions develop when blackheads near the surface are expressed. But pimples and deeper pores should not be mashed or irritated by pressure, as they become cysts and abscesses which might leave scars.

HEALED FRACTURE
J. N. writes: My 16-year-old son had a hairline fracture of the skull when he was 7. Would it be safe for him to play football on a high school team, using the routine protective equipment?

REPLY
Yes, the fracture healed within two months of the original injury and the same can be said of any brain damage that might have occurred.

PLAYPENS
Mrs. R. P. writes: Does putting a child in a playpen pose more of a psychological threat than his crib or high chair? We mothers in the neighborhood are arguing this question.

REPLY
No, assuming that the playpen is part of the child's normal environment and is not used to penalize him.

HIGH METABOLISM
Mrs. F. writes: I have a plus 50 metabolism. Is this unusual?

REPLY
Yes, in that plus 20 is the upper limit of normal. Your basal metabolic test ought to be repeated

Lynda Bird Johnson, Despite Press Criticism, Was Good 'Ambassador'

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—The most discussed personage at the royal wedding in Athens, next to the King and Princess Anne Marie, was Lynda Bird Johnson.

One newspaper quoted Palace circle as being irked that the President had sent his daughter in contrast to the thirteen reigning monarchs who attended the wedding. It was like treating Greece as a poor relative, the Palace was quoted as saying. Another paper opined that while Lynda may have been Azalea Queen, Regatta Queen and Queen of the Texas Yam Festival, this did not qualify her to rank alongside the royal heads of Europe.

And the chief topic of conversation at the royal wedding reception was why Lynda didn't take off the silk cover-all that looked like an old fashioned dust protector. Bejeweled royally watched as Lynda caromed over the dance floor and wondered what Lynda was trying to hide under that silk raincoat. Finally Special Ambassador Bill Helis suggested she take it off. She was reluctant.

However, this writer, having been in Athens and having observed Lynda's conduct, can report that her chief problem is poor press relations. Lynda handled herself with poise and dignity. She was simple and appealing, worked hard at the job of being a special ambassador.

But Lynda has one unfortunate hate in life—photographers. Ducking them has become a passion. She doesn't dunk them, as did Prince Charles of Britain when he saw a boat-load of photographers approaching royally in the water off Asteria Beach.

Lynda just runs and hides. Even when a close friend of LBJ's, George Vouras, hired a cameraman to make up a private album for the White House, Lynda refused to cooperate.

Digging In Crete

So no photographic record was made of Lynda's vigorous activities as special envoy in Athens. If there had been one, it would have shown her not sunning with royalty on Asteria Beach, but working hard to see Greece and get acquainted with its people. Almost immediately after the tiring flight across the Atlantic, Lynda took a commercial plane to the island of Crete to see its famous ruins. Bill Helis tried to hire a Greek civil defense plane for the flight, but Lynda bought a seal on a commercial liner instead.

Next day she visited the U. S. Air Force base near Athens, lunched at the NCO mess, talked to enlisted men, then visited the American community school.

The day after that she drove to the famous Corinth Canal and did some digging on the slopes of Acrocorinth where she unearthed one human bone and a piece of Roman tile. Having taken some courses in ancient history, she was fascinated and seemed to know what it was all about. At Corinth, she calmed her antagonism to photographers long enough to let NBC shoot her for ten minutes.

After lunch at the American Museum in old Corinth, Lynda went to Mycenae where she visited the tomb of the Greek warrior, Agamemnon, carved into the slope of the hill.

Not much of this, however, got into the Greek press. So the people of Athens did not know that they had a young lady ambassador who didn't wear jewels—which one paper complained about—but who had a great interest in learning more about their country.

Every Man An Envoy

Nor did many Athenians know about the little speech Lynda made to the 900 students at the American school at Halandri.

"I'm not a great speaker and I suspect people of my own age realize this more than older people do," she said. "But I wanted to thank you for letting us come here, and I admit that one of the principal reasons was that I hoped they would let you out of class."

"You are all representatives of our country, and you are all ambassadors in your own way. I am about your age and my father thought he could trust me to come over here and act as his ambassador. And I'm sure all of your parents are using you as their ambassadors too."

"What people abroad see of the United States," continued the President's daughter, "is what you show them. Many of the people of Greece may never get to the United States and all they may ever know of our country is what they learn through the Americans they will meet over here."

"They say 'You are an American,' therefore you must be worthy of that proud tag you wear."

"I must confess I'm jealous of you that I can't stay here longer than five days, and I hope you all understand and respect the advantage you are having and also the part you are playing in our foreign policy."

So spoke the 20-year-old special ambassador to the wedding of King Constantine.

Two other interesting events occurred in Athens. At the big wedding reception the King danced with two ladies: Princess Anne Marie and Lynda Bird. And at a private dinner, Prime Minister Papandreu in toasting the President, said: "There are some ambassadors here with greater official rank, but the President has sent us an ambassador from his own heart."

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

JERUSALEM, Israel — No city in the world is like this one. No city, nowhere. It is a Janus with two faces, and they hate each other. Moses died within sight of it. Christ died in it. The Romans sacked it. The Crusaders took it. The Jews fought for it. The Arabs built an important Mosque on it. Jerusalem is the only city in the world with a sign proclaiming "No Man's Land" running down the middle.

The west side is Jewish. The east is Arabic. The east, except for some olive groves, is sandy and barren. The west is green and verdant. The Arabs stare bitterly at the 900,000 refugees who were tossed out of Israel and they vow vengeance on the "Jooish." They have soldiers in brown tunics and red polka-dot burnouses and they have been waiting for "the day" since 1948.

The Israelis till their soil, build their skyscrapers, run their buses, fight their politics, and wait in silence with their guns cocked. The Old Jerusalem is the Jerusalem of Calvary, of Bethlehem, of the Garden of Gethsemane, of the walled city of Solomon, of poverty.

When a visitor crosses Nablus Road from west to east he leaves a world of Jaguars for one of donkeys. New Jerusalem is, in effect, a modern European city in a desert. Old Jerusalem is a place of shepherds, village wells, and women with long white veils. The difference is more than culture and religion. It is a difference in time.

When I was here in 1955, I was certain that there would be war. I was wrong. Now I am certain that there will be peace. I hope I am right. There are good people on both sides, and tempers are beginning to cool. Once, in Old Jerusalem, I saw Israeli jet fighters streak across the sky on the wrong side of the border—as a provocation.

In the same part, I saw Jordanian soldiers stand on a firing step behind a wall, waiting to pick off Jews who lived less than 50 yards away. The bravest person was a Jewish housewife, who stared at Arab rifles, stuck a fistful of cloths in her mouth, and hung her washing on the flat roof of her home.

Down the middle of the city there were rolls of barbed wire. It is gone now. At the Mandelbaum Gate, there were concrete tank traps. Today, I led the children through that gate from Old Jerusalem to New. The Arab customs guards were kind. Once, they would have tried to keep me from crossing the border.

Once, I would have had to fly to Beirut, 400 miles north, to catch another plane flying 400 miles south to Tel Aviv. We would come to 800 miles to cross a street. Today, the Arab guard said "Welcome. Good journey." He asked an Arab boy to help us with our suitcases to a point halfway between the lines.

When he dropped the bags, a Jewish boy with dark curly hair came running with a hand truck, and placed the luggage on it. For a moment, the two boys were a few feet apart. They studied the earth, then shyly looked up. The two looked at each other. They did not smile, but, if they had changed sides, I would not have been able to distinguish the Jewish youngster from the Arab.

The customs men in Israel speak English. They examined the passports and asked if I wanted to have them stamp the Israeli visa. It was a considerate question. They knew that we are Christians and, if an Israeli stamp is on the passport, the Arab countries will not permit us to return. "Stamp them," I said. My wife nodded.

We were taken to the King David Hotel. There, the tongue is Hebrew, the service is American, and the manners are Viennese. It is like stepping into the Kaiserhof (Berlin) or the Imperial (Vienna) fifty years ago. The manager greets the stranger in person. He does not ask for a passport. He exchanges money as though he trusted your checks.

The music on the terrace is schmaltzy German-Polish. The garden bears roses and small yellow and blue wild flowers. A barber named Ephraim came upstairs to cut my hair. He unpacked his gear carefully. The French doors to the east were open, and there stood the old walled city and the Mount of Olives. "I was born there," he said, pointing with the scissors, "56 years ago."

I sat quietly. He tossed a cover around my shoulders and began to cut. "Bishop?" he said, murmuring to himself. "Bishop? I know a Bishop. You are related to Bishop Sheen?" I said no. "He is my good friend," he said. "Once, in this hotel, he saw me in the lobby and he took my arm and walked across with me. I tell you—everybody was looking."

"You think there will be a war?" I said. He shook his head. "No more. Once, yes. But no more. Israel does not want to fight. The Arabs cannot fight. They make loud noises at each other, like children."

It is possible that Ephraim the Barber is as much of a philosopher as Bishop Fulton Sheen.

You're Telling Me

By William Ritt

The batfish propels itself by walking instead of swimming—a nature item. Gosh!—with a name like that we'd think it would fly!

After 25 years on the job, a St. Lytham, England, baker has to quit his work because he's developed an allergy to flour. What a crummy development!

When a fellow persists in constantly making radical remarks, says the man at the next desk, he can't blame his friends if they start thinking he's also a little Radical.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

Our unquenchable punsters have come up with some new colors for interior decorators to conjure with. What do you think, for instance, of conquered grape, foreseeable fuchsia, or 'Enry 'iggins Just You White? Then there's Zane Gray, bipartisan slate, and world cerise. See what we mean?

The bus conductor thrust out his coin receptacle and commanded, "Your fare, lady." The pretty young girl he had addressed dimpled winningly and replied, "You're not so bad yourself."

RIDDLE-DE-DEE:
Q. What color is a burp?
A. Burple.
Q. How do you get an elephant out of the theater?
A. You can't. It's in his blood.

Q. What is green and red and rents for $175 a month?
A. A two-room watermelon on East 62nd Street.
Q. What has a grey skin, 4 legs, and a trunk?
A. A mouse on vacation.

Legislators Would Limit Contributions

BALTIMORE (AP)—A legislative committee has proposed new restrictions on campaign contributions and expenditures.

The committee, headed by Sen. James Clark Jr., D-Howard, also has recommended new rules for disclosing the sources of campaign funds.

The committee made its recommendations public Tuesday. It will submit them to the Council some time next month.

One of the proposals would limit to $2,500 the amount an individual could contribute to all candidates in a single election campaign.

The law now imposed a $2,500 ceiling, but an individual is permitted to contribute this amount to any number of candidates in an election.

Another committee proposal would limit to $20,000 the amount of personal treasure a candidate could spend on his campaign.

Sen. Beall Proposes Medal For Dr. Blalock

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. J. Glenn Beall, R-Md., introduced a resolution Tuesday to authorize issuance of a gold medal posthumously to Dr. Alfred Blalock.

Beall told the Senate congressional recognition is due the Johns Hopkins University surgeon who developed the blue-baby operation.

Dr. Blalock died last week.

AERIAL PIC

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Trick aerial scenes for "Those Magnificent Men in the Flying Machines" were filmed at the Cecil Hotel in Dover, England, last week.

One of the proposals would limit to $2,500 the amount an individual could contribute to all candidates in a single election campaign.

The law now imposed a $2,500 ceiling, but an individual is permitted to contribute this amount to any number of candidates in an election.

Another committee proposal would limit to $20,000 the amount of personal treasure a candidate could spend on his campaign.

Congressmen Fete Beauty

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Ellen Kessel, Miss West Virginia and second runnerup in the Miss America pageant, visited Washington Tuesday and was feted at a luncheon by West Virginia's congressional delegation.

Rep. Ken Hechler, the only bachelor in the delegation, acted as host at the luncheon. Miss Kessel also attended sessions of both houses and was introduced to congressional leaders.

Legislative Duties Call Humphrey

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey took time out from his campaign Tuesday to handle legislative duties in Washington.

The Democratic vice presidential candidate attended Tuesday morning's weekly legislative breakfast at the White House.

Afterward, Speaker John W. McCormack put in a plug for his Senate colleague, saying Humphrey was "doing a great job" on the campaign trail.

Tasty Suggestions For A Fall Buffet

BUFFET SUPPER — A molded salad, made with one of the new salad gelatins, is a decorative accompaniment to glazed ham and a rice casserole.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

HERE COME fall buffet suppers. Friends are back from vacations, children are in school. It's time for get-togethers. But what to serve?

How about a clove-studded glazed ham that is easy to carve? Then as a change from the usual ham partners — scalloped potatoes or macaroni and cheese — we suggest a rice casserole. To prepare, use cooked, firm-grain rice mixed with cream sauce plus lots of diced pimiento and top with grated cheese.

No cooked vegetable is necessary with the ham and rice. Instead, you might like to serve a molded salad made with the new vegetable flavored gelatin. Such a pretty offering! When turned out of its mold, the top is creamy, the bottom a pretty clear color studded with the orange of shredded carrot and the gold of pineapple. If you use a ring mold for the salad, fill the center with salad greens; otherwise, surround with greens.

French bread or hot biscuits will be needed as an accompaniment to the main course. For dessert, what could be better than your best cookies and coffee?

TWO-LAYER BUFFET SALAD
2 packages (3 ounces each) mixed vegetable flavored salad gelatin
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 cups boiling water
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1/2 cup commercial sour cream
1/4 cup cold water
1 cup shredded carrots
1 can (8 1/2 ounces) pineapple tidbits

In a mixing bowl, stir together the gelatin, salt, boiling water and lemon juice until gelatin dissolves.

Remove 1/2 cup of the mixture to a small mixing bowl; gently beat in the sour cream and 1/4 cup of the cold water just until blended. Pour into a 1 1/2-quart mold. Chill until set, but not firm.

Into the remaining gelatin mixture, stir the carrots, undrained pineapple and remaining 1/2 cup cold water. Chill until slightly thickened. Spoon over the layer of the gelatin mixture in the mold. Chill until firm. Unmold. Garnish with salad greens. Makes 8 to 12 servings.

Lamb 'n' Ham Team Creates Cookout Fun

Since barbecue season has been in full swing for several months now, chances are good that you'll appreciate a few new ideas.

Have you grilled kabobs lately? They can be the center of the happiest of cook-outs, and so many exciting food combinations can be made. The fun is in the creation.

For one example, try an array of lamb cubes, ham squares, green pepper sections, sweet potatoes and pineapple chunks. Skewer in any order you wish, brush with French dressing and grill until brown. Turn the skewers occasionally so the cooking is even.

Select a meat tender enough to broil and cut into 1 1/2-inch cubes. Foods on a skewer should be planned so they will cook in about the same time. Brush the vegetables with melted butter or margarine if a hasting sauce is not used.

Lamb 'n' Ham Kabobs
1 pound boneless lamb, cut in 8 pieces
1 pound unsliced cooked ham, cut in 8 squares
2 medium-sized green peppers cut in 12 squares
3 medium-sized sweet potatoes, cooked and each cut in 4 pieces
1 can (13 1/2 ounces) pineapple chunks, drained
3/4 cup French dressing
4 twelve-inch skewers
Thread skewers using 2 pieces lamb, 2 pieces ham, 3 pieces green pepper, 3 pieces sweet potato, and 3 pineapple chunks on each skewer. Brush with French dressing. Grill, turning occasionally, about 15 minutes, or until browned, 4 servings.

Add sugar to fruits before freezing to help them retain their natural color and vitamin content.

COOK'S TOUR

By JEANNE LESEM
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI)—Satellite schools save money and labor in the national school lunch program, says Jeanette Hampton, a home economist.

Miss Hampton explained that satellite schools are those serving lunches that were prepared in central kitchens at other schools in the same district.

"The system came about gradually as districts expanded," she said in an interview. "With enrollments bigger than ever before, some districts must struggle to meet costs. Some convert presently operating kitchens to prepare food for several schools; other districts no longer build kitchens in new elementary schools."

For instance, pupils at 17 schools in the Livonia district near Detroit eat lunches prepared at four junior high schools. The ready-to-eat meals are delivered to outlying schools in portable food service equipment. One elementary school, which has no dining room, serves 145 pupils in the gymnasium on tables and benches that fold into the walls between meals.

Dishwashing is minimal since many schools now use disposable paper products for serving; in many cases, they're pre-portioned at the kitchen. Plastic-coated paper were even used for cooking some foods, such as custards, which can be baked at temperatures of 350 degrees or less, with the containers in a pan of hot water.

Miss Hampton represents both the Paper Cup and Container Institute, Inc., and the Peanut Growers of Alabama and Georgia. She attends 25 to 35 meetings a year, by invitation only, to demonstrate new recipes and new paper service products, and exchange serving and nutrition ideas with school food service personnel.

Dallas-born home economist formerly was on the national school lunch program staff of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Can Offer Extras
She said that the satellite system works best when the meals are prepared at junior and senior high schools, since on-premise kitchens can offer a few extra selections to their pupils, and older ones are harder to please.

"Food service supervisors say younger children have fewer food prejudices are more willing to accept new things," said Miss Hampton. She added that geographical preferences also influence menu planning, and recalled that a few Latin-American foods such as tortillas and enchiladas had to be introduced in southern Texas schools along with North American foods to make the latter more acceptable.

Children's reactions to new foods are unpredictable, she said. She mentioned a California boy who once rejected black figs with the statement: "I don't want oil burned prunes." Another boy who grudgingly tried a spoonful of a new food he'd previously refused came back for seconds, with the comment: "I didn't know anything I didn't like for so long could be so good."

Peanut Butter Sauce
Peanut butter barbecue sauce makes a rich, high-protein baste for beef, pork, turkey or chicken. Pre-cook 3 to 4 pounds of beef cubes 20 to 30 minutes in 1/4 cup of water and salt and pepper to taste, in covered electric frypan heated to 250 degrees or preheated 325-degree oven. While meat cooks, place following in saucepan and heat slowly, stirring often: 1/4 cup each of chopped onion, peanut butter and lemon juice; 1 tablespoon of butter, 2 teaspoons of salt, 2 tablespoons each of brown sugar and vinegar, 1/4 cup each of water and chopped celery, 3 tablespoons of Worcestershire sauce, and 1/2 teaspoons of prepared mustard. Pour hot sauce over meat, re-

Jiffy Tuna Burgers

WHY CAN'T American women earn to make a decent white? They use the sauce com- one of prepared vanilla pudding with fork. Add 2 cans (1 1/2 or 7) stantly in scalloped and au gratin over each cake layer. Slack the ounces each tuna in vegetable dishes, but usually looks and layers together and swirl whip. Mix well. Form into 6 tastes like library paste. ped cream over the sides. Refri- burgers. Broil 5 minutes on each. That's the plaint of critics of side. Serve on roll with onion our cooking. Is there some truth in the crit- ing.

Yes, but less than there used to be. As American cooks are becom- ing better acquainted with the great dishes of the world, they are learning to use the methods of fine old-world chefs. In making a sauce of this sort.

Canned Salmon Goes Haute Cuisine

SALMON AU GRATIN — A can of salmon plus a chef-type sauce makes a main dish good enough for company.

A chef often varies the cooking liquid. Americans are used to dumping in milk and calling it a day. Chefs are likely to use beef, veal, chicken or fish stock for part of the milk; and they may wind up by adding a little cream. It's astonishing what a small amount—2 to 4 tablespoons—of cream can contribute. Chefs add only enough thick- ening to make the sauce a pleas- ant consistency. Chefs cook the sauce enough to rid it of the raw taste of the liquid. And last, chefs add extra sea- sonings—not necessarily herbs or spices. If you're interested in a recipe that takes these points into con- sideration, you may wish to try this really excellent rule for Salmon Au Gratin. The liquid from a can of salmon replaces part of the milk for the white sauce, and a little cream is add- ed. Onion and fresh mushrooms yield their flavor; so does a soup- con of sherry. A topping of grated Parmesan cheese is the last mouth-watering touch.

SALMON AU GRATIN

- 1 can (1 pound) salmon
- Milk
- 1/4 cup butter of margarine
- 1/2 cup finely chopped onion
- 1/2 cup sliced mushrooms
- 6 tablespoons flour
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon white pepper
- 1/4 cup heavy cream
- 2 tablespoons pale dry sherry
- 1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese

Drain salmon liquid into a pint measure and add enough milk to make 2 cups; heat to simmering. Break up and reserve salmon. In a saucepan, melt the butter over low heat; add onion and mushrooms; cook until onion is wilted—about 5 minutes. Stir in flour, salt and pepper. Add the simmering milk mixture; cook and stir until thickened; cover and cook for 5 minutes, keeping heat very low. Stir in cream and sherry; remove from heat. Tuna reserved salmon into 4 shirred egg dishes or 6 by 2 inch individual pie dishes; pour over the sauce; sprinkle with Parme- san. Bake in a moderate (375 de- grees) oven for 15 minutes; run under broiler for a few minutes or until top is brown and crusty. Garnish with lemon and parsley.

Corny Treat

Try this corn bread variation. To a package of corn bread mix, add 1 teaspoon oregano and one (4-ounce) can of sliced mushrooms, drained, along with Blend 2 tablespoons of melted but- the egg and milk called for on- ter or margarine with 1/4 cup flaked coconut. Bake in a pre-heated honey and 1/2 cup flaked coconut. Spread the mixture on top of the Bake until golden. Cool. Make 20 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Homemade Topping For Bought Cupcakes

Give bought cupcakes that are not frosted a homemade topping. Place canned apple sauce and melted butter on top of round, press edges together. Prick top, hot oven (425 degrees) about 20 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Finger Eating Pies

Small pies for finger eating: Especially good for picnics. Roll out pastry, cut in 3-inch rounds, place canned apple sauce and melted butter on top of round, press edges together. Prick top, hot oven (425 degrees) about 20 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

When making gravy for roast duck, add a little orange juice and a few pinches of sugar. You might like a dash of curry powder in stewed tomatoes. Make a blueberry sauce from the frozen berries: serve over crisp waffles for brunch.

Planning A Shower?

If you've a soon-to-be bride in your circle of friends, chances are you're planning a bridal shower. Of course the occasion will call for your prettiest china and rather fancy food, but it's the wise hostess who knows that even the simplest foods take on a festive air when suitably garnished and attractively served.

These festive egg salad molds will win the heart of your honored guest—and others as well. They are chilled plan-a-heads, too, that can be tucked away for last-minute serving. Dainty little canned peas and versatile hard-cooked eggs are the major ingredients. Both are enveloped in a subtly flavored gelatin base.

Serve your salads on a glamorous silver tray. Surround them with wreaths of salad greenery and garnish the tops with intertwined wedding rings of pimiento.

Egg Salad Molds

- 1 tablespoon (1 envelope) unflavored gelatin
- 1/2 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
- 1 1/2 cups hot chicken broth or bouillon
- 3/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon saffron
- 6 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
- 1/2 cup diced celery
- 1 17-ounce can small finished cooking
- 2 tablespoons diced pimiento

Stir gelatin into mayonnaise or salad dressing in medium mixing bowl. Gradually blend in hot chicken broth or bouillon using electric or rotary beater. Stir in seasonings; chill until slightly thickened. Fold in remaining ingredients; pour into oiled 4-ounce salad molds. Chill until firm. Unmold on water cress or salad greens. Yield: 10 servings.

Summer skirts are kept in motion with deep, inverted V-pleats in front, or all around pleating of the knife, box, trouser and accordion variety. Adding to the blur of movement are tiers, flyaway panels, swirled wraparounds and flared A-lines—starring gores and go-dets—as well as hemlines deep in flounces and puffs.

Indoors Or Out, Have A Picnic With Kabobs

There's no need to fret about a rainy day ruining your picnic plans. Have one indoors. It can be as much fun as the one you planned outside.

Spread a blanket on the floor in the recreation room or dining room. Eat right out of the packed picnic basket with paper plates, and cups, just as though you were out-of-doors.

It's easy to make this quick switch in your plans, if you've planned Fiesta Ham Kabobs as the main feature.

Use cooked or canned ham, cut into 1 1/2-inch cubes. Threaded on skewers with the ham will be sweet potatoes, pineapple chunks and green peppers to give a meal-in-one with a short cooking period.

Fiesta Ham Kabobs

- 1 1/2 pounds cooked ham, cut in 1 1/2-inch cubes
- 1 can (16 ounces) pineapple chunks
- 2 green peppers, cut in 1 1/2-inch squares
- 1 can (1 pound, 7 ounces) sweet potatoes, drained
- 1/4 cup melted butter or margarine
- 4 large metal skewers

Thread on metal skewers, alternating pineapple chunk, ham cube, green pepper square, pineapple chunk and sweet potato. Place kabobs on rack in broiler pan. Insert in broiler so the top surface of meat is 3 to 4 inches from heat. Brush the vegetables and fruit with melted butter or margarine. Broil kabobs until lightly browned on all sides, about 12 to 15 minutes. 4 servings.

A half cup of orange, apricot or peach marmalade or a cup of honey make a good glaze for a baked ham. Apply the glaze during the last 30 minutes of baking.

New Treatment For Cornbread

SUNDAY NIGHT SUPPER — Hot cornbread treated to tomatoes, green peppers and cheese tastes wonderful with cold meat loaf.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Many modern cooks often astound us with their ingenuity. If you are a recipe collector, you probably feel the same way.

At their best, these cooks can take a recipe that's been around for a long time and give it an interesting and delectable twist.

Here is one such invention, much enjoyed at our house. Basic cornbread is laden with quartered cherry tomatoes and green peppers and given a topping of green pepper rings and grated cheese.

The cheese melting over the top of the bread makes it look irresistible. When we tried this recipe, we used a golden sharp cheddar cheese, but you may wish to choose a milder variety.

This Harvest Cornbread is so good served with scrambled eggs and bacon for lunch or brunch; it's also delicious with cold meat loaf and salad for Sunday night supper.

But whatever menu you put it on, serve it hot! We found that it reheats well.

HARVEST CORNBREAD

- 1 cup sifted flour
 - 2 teaspoons baking powder
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 1 cup white or yellow cornmeal
 - 2 tablespoons sugar
 - 1 egg
 - 1 cup milk
 - 1/2 cup butter or margarine, melted
 - 1/4 cup chopped green pepper
 - 9 cherry tomatoes, stemmed and quartered
 - 3 thinly sliced green pepper rings
 - 1/2 cup grated cheddar cheese
- Into a medium mixing bowl, sift together the flour, baking powder, salt, cornmeal and sugar. Add egg, milk and butter. Beat until just smooth — about 1 minute. Fold in the chopped green pepper and tomatoes to distribute evenly. Turn into a buttered 8 by 8 by 2 inch baking dish. Arrange green pepper rings over the surface of batter. Bake in a hot (425 degrees) oven for 15 to 20 minutes. Sprinkle with cheese. Continue baking until cheese melts — about 5 minutes more. Serve piping hot, cut in squares, from the baking dish; or reheat. Makes 9 servings.

Early Marriage

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Early marriage, long love," says an old German proverb. "Early marriage, short love," say the statistics.

The Institute of Life Insurance, making that observation, reports that in nearly half of the couples that end up losers in the game of love, the wife was in her teens when she married. The odds are even worse, according to the Institute, when both the bride and bridegroom are teen-agers.

On The Slant

NEW YORK (UPI) — The slant is upward on sales of the slant board for exercise and relaxation, reports the National Notions Association. Slant boards are for lying on, with feet higher than head, and those who promote them say they're good for toning and shaping legs and hips, slimming flabby arms, flattening the abdomen, and helping the figure while on a diet. They now come with built-in massagers. Most contain foam rubber padding for comfort.

Better Breakfast

To vary the morning oatmeal, add 1/2 cup of raisins to the water just before stirring in 2 cups of oats. Top each serving with cinnamon-sugar. Makes 6 servings.

Measure Time

NEW YORK (UPI) — Man's preoccupation with his stomach had much to do with his pioneer attempts to measure time in small units, according to researchers at Bulova Watch Company.

Thousands of years ago, men and women first started measuring time because they preferred to eat their favorite foods cooked just so. The "just so" for various dishes were used as units of time, the first vague equivalents for hours and minutes.

A chieftain might have said a young warrior swam across the lake in two of Ethel's roasted rabbits. That meant the swimmer had taken as long to swim across as it took Ethel to roast two rabbits.

Skillet Entree Pairs Sausage, Zesty Sauce

Looking for skillet entrees to serve for supper during the hot months? Your kitchen will stay cooler than if an oven entree were prepared.

This particular skillet dish is a joy to eat as well as to cook. The meat is spicy pork sausage links and the sauce adapts a flavor from the cookery of the New Orleans region. Basically a zesty Creole sauce, it blends green pepper, onion, celery, canned tomato sauce and seasonings.

Pork Sausage Links—New Orleans

- 1 1/2 pounds pork sausage links
 - 2 tablespoons water
 - 2 cans (8 ounces each) tomato sauce
 - 1 cup water
 - 1/2 cup chopped onion
 - 1/2 cup chopped green pepper
 - 1/2 cup chopped celery
 - 1 tablespoon brown sugar
 - 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
 - 1/4 teaspoon savory
 - 3 cups cooked rice
- Place sausage links and 2 tablespoons water in cold frying pan. Cover tightly and cook slowly 5 minutes. Remove cover and brown links. Remove links and pour off drippings. Combine tomato sauce, 1 cup water, onion, green pepper, celery, sugar, Worcestershire sauce and savory. Cook slowly 20 minutes. Add sausage links and cook until heated through. Serve over rice. 6 servings.

Beat The Heat

NEW YORK (UPI) — Women in South Viet Nam have a sure-fire method of keeping their infants from getting diaper rash. Their mothers swaddle them in banana leaves.

Cheddar Cheese Pie

Hot, bubbly, golden brown describes this cheddar cheese pie. So light, and rich in cheese flavor, it is bound to become a family favorite for a Friday night supper or lunch.

Margaret Rudkin, whose cookbook gives a delightful New England charm to cooking, says this about her cheese pies, "My special cheese pies are very quick to make and are fine for a lunch or supper dish with a salad on the side." Here, from the "Country Life" section of the book, is one of her special recipes for cheddar pie.

Cheddar Cheese Pie

Preheat oven to 350 degrees Fahrenheit.

- Slices of white bread
- Butter
- 1/2 pound sharp cheddar cheese
- 2 eggs
- 1 cup milk

Butter a 9- or 10-inch Pyrex pie pan generously. Butter enough slices of white bread, crusts removed, to line the pan's bottom and sides, buttered-side down, cutting the bread to fit and overlapping here and there if necessary.

Slice the cheese into small pieces and lay evenly over the bread in the pie pan. Beat the eggs in a small bowl. Add the milk and pour over the cheese. Bake at 350 degrees Fahrenheit about 30 minutes, or until bubbly and golden brown. Serve immediately.

Use liquid from canned vegetables to thin condensed soups and salad dressings.

Don't Sniff At 'Kookie' Breakfast

Dr. Paul B. Pearson, president of the Nutrition Foundation, reminds parents that adequate breakfasts are necessary for good performance in school, in athletics and in daily activities.

"There have been major changes in the dietetic pattern in a large segment of the population in the past few decades. But the nutritional requirements of secondary and high school-age children remain the same as they were 50 years ago," he states.

The family breakfast with mother, father and children gathered together about the table for a hearty morning meal is rare in these high-pressure days. "Nevertheless, no matter where they eat it or in what 'kookie' form, every child and teen-ager needs a breakfast that supplies energy food, vitamins, minerals and protein, preferably from animal sources such as eggs, milk, meat or fish," this distinguished nutrition scientist states.

He advises parents not to force their children to stick to traditional breakfast patterns. For example, if a teenager wants a cream soup for breakfast, O.K. Or if she wants a cheese sandwich, a frankfurter, even a pizza or an ice cream cone, let her enjoy it. These are all good protein foods, though perhaps a bit offbeat.

But the food eaten for breakfast is infinitely more important than the form or where it is eaten.

If a high school student wants to set a tray with paper cups and plates to avoid having to wash her dishes before dashing off to school, let her. It's a good breakfast idea for everyone.

If she wants a sandwich of enriched white bread, peanut butter and tomato—encourage her. It's an excellent, if not conventional, breakfast item. If she rebels, as do many teen-age girls, against milk, suggest cambridge coffee made by mixing 1 heaping teaspoon of instant coffee with a cup of cold milk and sweetening.

Soft Soap

Note to the pennywise: Save worn down cakes of hand and bath soap, sliver them on a grater, add boiling water and store in Mason jars. You'll make a soap jelly, good for dishes, lingerie, the car or anything else that needs the gentle touch. Add 1/4 cup of sal soda concentrated to one jar to get a mixture that works for laundry, for washing floors, the garbage pail or anything else that needs some positive action.

Desert Supreme

Serve individual wedges of blue cheese, softened to room temperature, with fresh or candied fruit, wafers and nut meats for dessert. Pears, apples and peaches all go well with blue cheese. On a lazy susan or large platter, arrange the cheese wedges in the center and surround with quartered sections of fruit, nuts and assorted crackers.

Water Bugs

An insecticide may not be necessary to rid house plants of insects and other pests. The U.S. Department of Agriculture says a bath with soapy water ples and peaches all go well with blue cheese. On a lazy susan or large platter, arrange the cheese wedges in the center and surround with quartered sections of fruit, nuts and assorted crackers.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The lowly sneaker isn't held in ill repute by medical experts who treat foot ailments.

Replying to a questionnaire on sneaker wear, a substantial majority of more than 100 podiatrists from 15 states said they themselves wear sneakers, so do their children and, what's more, they're not opposed to anyone with normal feet wearing them. The results of the survey were reported at the 52nd annual meeting of the American Podiatry Association.

Kaline's 2-Run Homer Beats Orioles, 2-1

Detroit Whips Milt Pappas In First Inning

Birds Strand 13 Runners; Fail In 9th With Bases Loaded

DETROIT (AP) — Al Kaline slammed a two-run homer and Ed Rakow and Juan Navarro pitched splendid relief ball in the Detroit Tigers' 2-1 victory over Baltimore Tuesday.

The loss dropped the second-place Orioles 1½ games behind the American League-leading New York Yankees, who played a two-night doubleheader at Cleveland.

Rakow relieved Detroit starter Hank Aguirre in the first inning, worked out of a bases-loaded jam and held the Orioles in check until the ninth.

The Orioles then threatened, filling the bases with one out, but Navarro, who had replaced Rakow with runners on first and second, disposed of the dangerous Brooks Robinson and Sam Bowens on infield popups.

Rakow, who permitted only six hits, retired punch hitter Russ Snyder but hit Luis Aparicio with a pitch and Jerry Adair followed with a single, Aparicio stopping at second.

Threaten In Ninth

Navarro took over at this point and walked Boog Powell, leading the bases. Robinson popped to second baseman Jerry Lumpe for the second out, and Bowens, after narrowly missing an extra base blow with a long foul drive to the left field corner, ended the game by popping to shortstop Dick McAuliffe.

Hank Aguirre started for the Tigers and, after retiring the first two batters, walked four men in a row, forcing in a run. Rakow replaced Aguirre and struck out Jackie Brandt.

Rakow also worked out of a bases-loaded jam in the second after pitcher Milt Pappas and Adair singled and Powell walked. Robinson ended the inning with a force play grounder.

13 Runners Stranded

Baltimore stranded 13 runners, seven in the first three innings.

Kaline's homer, his 13th of the season, followed Lumpe's one-out single in the first.

The Tigers threatened in the sixth when Lumpe rapped his way. Mickey Mantle got New York singled to right, but Baltimore off a 2-0 start in the first inning. First baseman Bob Johnson hit with his 33rd homer of the season. Norm Cash's hard season, Phil Lutz hit his fifth grounder into a double play and homer of the season in the Gates Brown grounded back to sixth inning. Both came off Pappas.

Rakow, who has now beaten the Orioles three times, all in relief, gave up three hits after the third inning. It was his eighth victory against nine defeats.

Pappas was charged with the defeat, his sixth against 15 victories.

Cubs' Koonce Blanks Dodgers

Relief Twirler Notches 1-0 Win

CHICAGO (AP) — Cal Koonce came up with a sparkling relief job and pitched the Chicago Cubs to a 1-0 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Tuesday before a slush gathering of 961.

Koonce took over after starter Lew Burdette left when Willie Davis' ground ball bounced off his right arm in the first inning, causing a severe bruise.

Koonce, scoring his first decision of the year, blanked the Dodgers the rest of the way on seven hits.

The Cubs got their run in the sixth when Jim Stewart singled, went to third on a single by Andre Rodgers, and scored while Billy Williams was forcing Rodgers at second.

City Fields Are Closed

Improve Conditions For Next Season

Municipal Field and Constitution Park Field have been closed, it was announced yesterday by the City Recreation Department.

The public is asked to cooperate with the Rec Department by staying off both fields.

Work is being done to improve conditions for next season.

Both fields are being fertilized, and overseeded to provide more dense turf on the playing areas.

Recommendations were made by Joseph Steger, county farm agent, and Dr. Elwyn Deal, lawn specialist at the University of Maryland following the personal examination of the areas and laboratory soil tests.

The police department will patrol the areas to prevent any violations of the no trespassing signs.

Veale Fans 15 Braves, Bucs Lose

Sets Club Record In 2-0 Contest

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Pittsburgh's Bob Veale broke a 55-year-old club strike on record Tuesday night but the Milwaukee Braves parlayed Denny Lee's masterful pitching and clutch hitting into a 2-0 victory over the Pirates.

Veale fanned 15 men to snap the record of 12 set by Babe Adams in 1909 and tied twice this season by Veale. He struck out every Milwaukee starter but Rico Carty, fanned five Braves twice, struck out Lee master three times and struck out the side in two innings.

His 15 strikeouts tied the major league high this season. Milwaukee collected seven hits off the big southpaw. Three of the hits came in the second inning when they scored both of their runs.

Joe Torre led off the inning with a single, advanced on a passed ball and scored on Gene CHICAGO (UPI)—Soybeans and clover hedges, corn steamed, wheat and rye mixed on The Chicago Board of Trade Tuesday.

At the final bell, soybeans were 1 1/2 to 2, wheat down 3/4 to 1 1/2, unchanged to 1 1/2, oats down 1/2, 2 1/2 and rye down 1 1/4 to 3 1/2.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of my beloved son,

Merwin K. Friend, who drowned June

25, 1964.

The loss was hard, the shock severe.

We never knew his death so near.

Only those who have lost can tell.

The pain of parting without farewell.

He little thought when leaving home,

That he would never again return.

Some may forget him, but he is gone.

But I will remember him always.

No matter how long.

Sadly missed by his mother,

Mrs. Anna Friend.

In loving memory of my beloved son,

Raymond M. Stiller, who was killed in a plane crash on June 23, 1964.

In memory we turn back the pages

Along each road we trod.

We bless the years we had you

And leave the rest to God.

You left a beautiful memory

A memory too great to be told.

But to us who loved and lost you

Your memory will never grow old.

Sadly missed by

Mother, Father, Brother,

Wife and Children.

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank our friends, relatives and neighbors for kindness shown during the bereavement of John Joseph Byrne.

We especially wish to thank Father

John J. Byrne, Jr., for his presence at the funeral. Also, the Catholic War

Veterans, those who gave floral tributes, spiritual messages, and those who helped in any way.

Mrs. John Joseph Byrne, Jr.

and Family.

Voters Urged To Use Choice Offered By GOP

Goldwater Backers Kick Off Campaign

A Goldwater for President backer last night urged citizens of Allegany County to take advantage of the choice offered by the GOP in the November 3 election.

The plea was made by E. Alvin Gentry, LaVale, counsel for the Allegany Ballistics Laboratory, during a public meeting held last night in the grill room of the Fort Cumberland Hotel and attended by some 60 residents of the county.

He said the choice facing the people is a choice between conservatism and left wing liberalism, between the Christian virtues and the philosophy of the left wing press, between respect for law and order and license for civil disobedience and between political integrity and political license.

The decision made on election day, he said, will "take Lyndon back to Texas" and Home on the Range.

Dr. Harold S. Malin, chairman for the meeting, stressed the need for dedicated workers to help carry the county for Goldwater.

Rev. Martin King, pastor of First Church of God, Mapleside, gave the invocation and Rev. Ann R. A. Richards, Rawlings, Baptist minister, the benediction.

A number of GOP party leaders, including J. Wallace Close, honorary chairman for the Allegany County Citizens for Goldwater Committee, were introduced.

Time Is Short

John S. Buchanan, Everett, a Bedford County "Citizen for Goldwater" stressed that the time is short and that citizens of this county must not be complacent.

"We are dealing," he said, "in a vicious, roughshod campaign which is a 'fight for survival'."

Mr. Buchanan brought a supply of Goldwater for President material to the committee, which reported through Dr. Malin that campaign supplies did not arrive here but that it was not the fault of Allegany County Republican Party leaders.

Plans are being made, he said, to get materials flowing into the county and into the hands of the people.

A plea for funds to help finance the campaign was made at the close of the meeting.

Unit Elects Vice Chairman

Arch N. Hutcherson last night was elected vice president of the Mayor's Citizens Advisory Committee.

The committee headed by Harry Kaufman, chairman, met last night in City Hall for its September meeting. Also attending were C. E. Waterman, Dr. Wayne W. Hill and Chad Riley.

The desirability of city-county cooperation was discussed by the unit which Mayor Earl D. Chaney asked to serve as a "watchdog" committee.

Committee members noted that much duplication could be avoided by cooperation between the city and county and suggested that a committee appointed to explore the subject be reactivated.

Plans were made to advance an urban renewal information program. Members reported they have heard no real opposition to the program and that most people are "just waiting for it to start."

The dinner will be for all registered adults of the council and is being sponsored by the board of directors.

Art Class Begins Tonight At YMCA

Harry Mandel, YMCA sketching and oil painting teacher, will accept registration for his class held at the YMCA on Wednesday, starting at 7 o'clock beginning tonight.

Enrollments will be accepted by phone at 724-5445 or by coming to the YMCA on the first, the same purpose.

Teachers Begin U. Of Md. Night Class

Two of about 14 Allegany County teachers who registered last night at the Board of Education office for a University of Maryland extension class entitled science in the elementary schools are shown with Clive Veri, who came from College Park to register teachers interested in taking the three-hour course once each week. Registering are Mrs. Phyllis Bowers, teacher at Oldtown School, left, and Mrs. Rosaline Nutter, teacher at Penn Avenue School. Harry Sweeney of the University of Maryland will come to the board office on Washington Street each Tuesday at 6:30 p. m. to conduct the course through the first semester. Additional registrants will be accepted next Tuesday night.

District Soil Supervisors West Virginia To Hold Annual Meeting Plane Crash Cause Cited

In the observance of the 15th annual Maryland Land Week, October 4-10, the Allegany Soil Conservation District will hold its annual cooperators' meeting on Tuesday, October 6, at the Baltimore Pike Fire Hall, according to Wilbert R. Paul, chairman of the district supervisors.

Dr. Paul said reports will be made at the meeting of activities of the local district by one of the supervisors who also will announce the accomplishments during the past year.

The program also will include the showing of old pictures and scenes of the Cumberland area by Herman J. Miller, a retired member of the Cumberland Fire Department whose hobby is collecting old pictures of this area.

"The Barbereilles," a quartet formed by Mrs. Martha Robinson, Mrs. Cora Hardin, Mrs. Dorothy Street and Mrs. Patricia Campbell, will present several songs.

Refreshments, donated by the local Conservation District and the State Soil Committee, will be served by the Baltimore Pike Fire Company auxiliary.

Maryland Land Week is observed annually to acquaint residents of the state with the importance of the state's land and natural resources.

The chief objectives of the observance are to encourage the use of soil and water conservation practices by those who till the land; to impress all citizens of the state with their dependence upon the soil and acquaint them with the effects of erosion, improper drainage and soil deficiencies upon their health and welfare; and to create a better understanding of the interdependence of soil, forests, water and wildlife and the need for their aesthetic and economic values.

YMCA Has Tickets For Baseball Game

Central YMCA still has tickets available for youths interested in attending the Baltimore Orioles-Detroit Tigers baseball game on Saturday, October 3, in Baltimore.

Benjamin F. Haines, YMCA program director, said the supervised trip is open to boys and girls between the ages of eight to 16. Adults also may attend for a small fee.

All the children's tickets are presented free to the YMCA by the Baltimore baseball club. The YMCA chartered bus will leave the YMCA at 8 p. m. on October 3.

Additional information and reservations may be obtained by calling 724-5445.

Theft In Home Is Being Probed

The forced entry and theft of articles valued at about $25 was being investigated yesterday by the Detective Bureau here.

Mrs. Anna Shaulbach, 23 West Roberts Street, told Lt. Thomas J. See and Detective Kenneth Morrissey that someone entered her home Monday and took articles, including a ladies ring with a pink set, but that the home was not ransacked.

Police said the intruder entered the home by punching a hole in the screen on a rear window.

Crossing Closed Today

The Valley Street B&O Railroad crossing will be closed to traffic today from 7 a. m. to 3 p. m.

While maintenance crews renew the crossing and blacktop the crossing, it was also closed yesterday for the same purpose.

Local Man Hit By Car Hospitalized

A 57-year-old local man was hospitalized last night with injuries sustained when he was hit by an automobile on Virginia Avenue near Fourth Street.

David E. Grapes of 408 York Place was admitted to Memorial Hospital where his condition last night was reported as being "satisfactory."

Attaches said the man sustained possible head injuries and abrasions of his legs and was admitted for X-rays and observation.

City policeman Louis Robinette, who witnessed the accident at 8:40 p. m., said that Grapes walked from behind a parked car into the path of a car being driven south on Virginia Avenue by John R. Shirk, 33, of RD 1, Ridgeley.

No charges have been preferred pending the outcome of the man's injuries, police said.

Construction Safety Class Opens Oct. 1

The Maryland Department of Labor and Industry sponsored training course in construction safety will begin at Fort Hill High School Thursday, October 1. The courses will be held for five consecutive Thursdays from 6:30 to 9:30 p. m.

Instructors and material will be provided by the Bureau of Labor Standards, Department of Labor.

The course and related material is free and Commissioner Henry Miller of the Department of Labor and Industry urges all construction firms to take advantage of the courses by designating supervisory as well as other selected workers to attend. All construction workers are eligible and urged to attend.

It is the firm conviction of those responsible for arranging and conducting the courses that the accident and injury rate in the construction industry can be substantially reduced through preventative steps that can be applied as an integral part of any job with a minimum of effort and cost.

Education of both management and worker in conjunction with practical application, safety officials say, is the key that opens the door to safe operations. The approach and know-how to safe operating methods will be explored and explained in these courses.

The courses will be offered in selected areas throughout the state during the next few months in order that the valuable knowledge to be gained will be made available to firms and workers in all sections of Maryland. The program is under the direction of John F. Nimick, state director of industrial safety.

Urban Renewal Explained To Businessmen

South End Group Directors Named

Urban renewal plans for Cumberland were outlined last night by R. Jackson Seay Jr., member of the Simonds and Simonds firm in charge of planning for the local project, who spoke during the annual meeting of the South Cumberland Business Civic Association.

The talk by Mr. Seay was well received by some 150 persons who attended the meeting. With the use of charts the speaker outlined the program and showed the loop streets and indicated area which will be used for new retail places, to supplement present retail areas.

Need For Parking

The need for parking plus free and easy access to the downtown business area in conjunction with the Cumberland Thruway ramps, were outlined by the speaker who pointed out that 75 per cent of the urban renewal expense will be borne by the federal government.

The urban renewal program is expected to be completed over a period of 10 to 25 years, said Mr. Seay. Good comments on the clarity of the explanation of the program was voiced by those who attended the meeting.

Mr. Seay was introduced by William F. DeMare, executive director of the Cumberland Urban Renewal Agency.

Rev. Bryce Shoemaker, pastor of St. John's Lutheran Church, gave the invocation for the buffet-style dinner with entertainment provided by the Barbereilles—Cora Hardin, Dorothy Street, Patricia Campbell and Martha Robinette.

During the business meeting of the association, Quentin M. Rice, president, announced that James Garland, William B. Orndorff, Russell H. Carter, James Seapelli, and himself are the new members of the Board of Directors.

Highlights Of Year

Mr. Rice also outlined highlights of the past year. He said the association has been making plans to purchase the New Theater Building on Virginia Avenue for use as a community center in South Cumberland. Included in the future plans for the building are a place for youth of the community.

Other highlights discussed included the annual Halloween parade described as "one of the biggest and best" ever held in South Cumberland and the Fun Fair which proved to be an elaborate affair at the White Oaks Shopping Center.

Past presidents introduced by Mr. Rice include F. Perry Smith, George Millenson, C. Glen Watson Jr., George Holler, Blair Slump, Glen Morris, Larry Marks, Robert Keech, Arnold Robertson and William B. Orndorff.

Mr. Seay's address last night was his first public speaking engagement in Cumberland. His other talks made in recent months were given before groups affiliated with the Cumberland Urban Renewal Agency.

Youth Jailed For 30 Days

A young Corriganville man yesterday was ordered committed to the County Jail for 30 days in default of a fine imposed on a motor vehicle charge at a hearing in Trial Magistrate Court.

Glen Allan Lowery, 21, of Corriganville, was fined $100 by Magistrate Paul W. Barnett on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while his license was revoked. Lowery was given the jail term in default of the fine.

Magistrate Barnett also found Lowery guilty of resisting arrest and operating a motor vehicle on expired tags. He was fined $25 and $10 on the two charges and given 13 days in default.

However, Magistrate Barnett ruled the sentences may run concurrently.

Lowery was arrested yesterday afternoon at his home by Tfc. John H. Switzer and Trooper Paul J. Florita of the State Police.

Ballet Company To Stage "Alice In Wonderland"

The Cumberland City Ballet Company is rehearsing daily for "Alice In Wonderland," its initial production which will be presented on Saturday, October 10 at Fort Hill High School auditorium.

John Moyer, director, said nearly 100 members will appear in the production which will be staged during a matinee at 2:30 o'clock.

The members of the company have been taking special training in classical ballet at Central YMCA.

Vickie Nixon and Rebecca Gormer are assisting Mr. Moyer with the choreography. Nancy Steels was selected for the role of Little Alice; Miss Nixon, Big Alice; and Karen Simpson, her sister.

Unusual costumes such as the gayphon, mock turtle, big bunny, caterpillar and Humpty Dumpty were made by Mrs. Norman Curtis who also made the "Living Flower" costumes. Wire framework for the costumes were designed and fashioned by Charles L. Moyer.

Original sketches for the cook, mad duchess, king and queen, were designed by Mrs. Howard Taylor and made by Mrs. Edward Eyer.

The second full length ballet, "White Mist" will feature Vicki Nixon as soloist with the Corps de Ballet. Miss Nixon will also dance a pas de deux in the ballet supported by Alan Porter.

The program will also include guest appearances by featured soloists of the Baltimore City Ballet Company. Miss Gormer also a member of the Baltimore dance group, will dance the pas de deux from Les Sylphides with special guest Martin Fredman of the National Ballet Company of Washington, D. C.

Music for the production is under the direction of Mrs. Farrell Knieram.

Central YMCA sponsors the Cumberland City Ballet Company; program director Benjamin F. Haines.

LaVale PTA Fun Fair Due Oct. 8

The LaVale Elementary School PTA will sponsor a Fun Fair from 5 p. m. until 8:30 p. m. on Thursday, October 8.

Fun Fair plans were announced by Mrs. James Flanagan, ways and means chairman, at the recent PTA meeting. Supper will be served October 8 and home room mothers will be in charge of various booths planned for each room.

Mrs. Robert D. Wilson, program chairman, announced that the four remaining PTA programs will deal with "The Development of the Whole Child." Her committee consists of Mrs. R. Monroe Harris, Mrs. Kenneth A. Wolf and Mrs. Paul A. Stair.

Dr. Charles Orlick, PTA president, conducted the business meeting at which Mrs. David D. Smith was elected to serve as secretary for the year.

Dr. William Firey, first vice president, presented the proposed budget. Mrs. Glenn Kaufman, second vice president, reported on the LaVale swim program in which 100 LAVale School students participated into second semester work, English 102, under the leadership of Thomas Malin, building and grounds chairman; Mrs. L. R. McKenzie, membership chairman, and Mrs. Raymond Swab, child study group chairman.

Miss Anna Logsdon, principal, spoke briefly on the new programs being used in the school and introduced the staff. Group singing was led by Mr. and Mrs. R. Monroe Harris.
